To Whom It May Concern:

After speaking with many of my friends and colleagues, a majority of us feel that the proposed Microsoft Settlement is far from equitable. I have personally witnessed their wanton anti-competitive behavior and their clear violation of Anti-Trust laws (and Racketeering Laws) in the course of my professional life. The truly unfortunate part of this situation is that it will appear to many Americans that anyone with enough money and lawyers can get what ever they want in this country.

Other countries, with their own disputes with Microsoft, are surely shaking their heads in disgust. Many U.S. States have also voiced their opposition.

The computer industry has likely been the most competitive, innovative industry in the history of this country. After this is over, I can guarantee you, Microsoft will be back to their old tricks again. Your decision to let Microsoft get off easy will come back to haunt all of us.

Sincerely,

Wayne Quimby
