

From: Pauline Freise
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 12/11/01 6:28pm
Subject: No creative possibility?

Micro$oft has ruined programmers and most of all it has destroyed design and innovation. We had many programmers in the past with excellent ideas about how to design work-able software and programs. This monopoly destroys innovation and ideas. There is no more room for being creative now? How do we see the light here? We recognize that Windows is efficient, but allows no room for creativity or design "by it's own design" and "refer to copy right and other programmer issues like following windows standards for interface design issues".

? who's standards

Pauline Freise