Subject: Can Microsoft antitrust case now; ill-conceived; gone on too long!!

Gentlemen:

It is my considered opinion that the Microsoft antitrust case was ill-conceived originally. It has gone on far too long, becoming a legal charade.

This country owes a debt of gratitude to the Microsoft Corporation and Mr. William Gates for the preeminent position of leadership in information acquisition, processing, and presentation it presently enjoys.

The public can see through this veiled attempt at fleecing the recently financially successful entrepreneurs and corporation. Go punish Ford and Firestone for the Explorer rollover tragedies. These companies are sufficiently legally sophisticated to fend the Justice Department off for several lifetimes. Where is the top level management decision making capability at the Department? This Microsoft thing appears to have been out of control from the inception.

Thank you for your consideration of my opinion.
