

From: Chase Caster
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/23/02 6:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposed Microsoft Settlement is unfair to all those who wish to write (and use) similar software to that which Microsoft uses. The Windows operating system is written in such a way that it is difficult to use anything other than Microsoft software for much of what computers are most used for. And because of that, not only are outside applications hard to find and use, but other operating systems are nearly impossible to come by because Windows is designed to be incompatible with them. If we let Microsoft keep their monopoly, we will be doing a great injustice to the computing world.