Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Greetings,

As a Macintosh user and new media developer, I feel I have a certain interest in the Microsoft case. It only goes to show what kind of business practices Microsoft engages in when they propose a settlement that costs them little (are they really using the retail cost of their software to gauge the value of the settlement?) and gains them more market share. Good heavens! I thought they were supposed to be punished?

If this settlement is allowed to stand, it will be a travesty, pure and simple. I hope that the US justice system will not be so mocked.

Sincerely,

Curtiss R. Hammock II
