Re: Microsoft Settlement

Incredibly, the foremost innovative and economy enhancing company of the past fifty years has faced and continues to face an onslaught of legal challenges because of its superior and highly successful business model. This is happening through the combined conspiratorial actions of past federal and present state governments allied with certain business companies, i.e., Sun Microsystems, Oracle, AOL, et al. What these companies could not achieve in the ultimate test - the marketplace - they seek to gain via the use of Machiavellian chicanery and political cronyism; particularly a number of State Attorneys General and the foul, disgraced Clinton Justice Department.

There is no harm here to the American or Foreign consumer. To the contrary, Microsoft has made sense of the Internet and has provided commonality and standardization and thus ease of use to the consumer, not obscurantism and confusion such as that which existed prior to the advent of Microsoft's operating systems.

If there is any illegality being practiced relative to the issues at hand concerning Microsoft, it is the conspiracy of Government operating hand in hand with some of the slimiest, slipperiest billionaire business operatives, and their surrogates, in existence in the world today.

The Government must reward business excellence and innovativeness; Government must recognize and commend those enterprises that enhance economic activity; the Government and the Courts must not penalize achievement and success to satisfy the politically connected obstructionist losers.
