

January 7, 2002

United States Department of Justice

Re: Microsoft Settlement

Isn't it about time Washington caught up with the rest of America? Perhaps those within the Beltway haven't heard President Bush. We are at War. Accordingly, let's put to bed this case against Microsoft. All have had their opportunity to spend their "day in court." As we see it, no one won. Politics being what it is, those who have never worked to meet a payroll would like this case to drag out for the benefit of their own private agendas. If the green envious competitors of Microsoft have better to offer, let us hear from them. The silence has been deafening.

It appears that some attorneys at the State level think they will benefit from delaying closure on this matter. You know what Shakespeare said about the legal profession!

Henry and Eleanor Langworthy

CC: Microsoft