AP: "Barr: No evidence of fraud that'd change election outcome"

From: DoJ Real Time News Clips <alert-doj@rendon.com>
To: Kerri Kupec <kerri.kupec@usdoj.gov>
Date: Tue, 01 Dec 2020 14:28:42 -0500

AP: "Barr: No evidence of fraud that'd change election outcome," Michael Balsamo, December 01, 2020
<https://apnews.com/article/election-2020-joe-biden-donald-trump-elections-william-barr-b1f1488796c9a98c4b1a9061a6c7f49d>

Attorney General William Barr said Tuesday the Justice Department has not uncovered evidence of widespread voter fraud that would change the outcome of the 2020 presidential election.

His comments come despite President Donald Trump's repeated claims that the election was stolen, and his refusal to concede his loss to President-Elect Joe Biden.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Barr said U.S. attorneys and FBI agents have been working to follow up specific complaints and information they've received, but they've uncovered no evidence that would change the outcome of the election.

"To date, we have not seen fraud on a scale that could have affected a different outcome in the election," Barr told the AP.

The comments are especially direct coming from Barr, who has been one of the president's most ardent allies. Before the election, he had repeatedly raised the notion that mail-in voter fraud could be especially vulnerable to fraud during the coronavirus pandemic as Americans feared going to polls and instead chose to vote by mail.

Last month, Barr issued a directive to U.S. attorneys across the country allowing them to pursue any "substantial allegations" of voting irregularities, if they existed, before the 2020 presidential election was certified, despite no evidence at that time of widespread fraud. That memorandum gave prosecutors the ability to go around longstanding Justice Department policy that normally would prohibit such overt actions before the election was certified. Soon after it was issued, the department's top elections crime official announced he would step aside from that position because of the memo.

The Trump campaign team led by Rudy Giuliani has been alleging a widespread conspiracy by Democrats to dump millions of illegal votes into the system with no evidence. They have filed multiple lawsuits in battleground states alleging that partisan poll watchers didn't have a clear enough view at polling sites in some locations and therefore something illegal must have happened. The claims have been repeatedly dismissed including by Republican judges who have ruled the suits lacked evidence. Local Republicans in some battleground states have followed Trump in making similar unsupported claims.

Trump has railed against the election in tweets and in interviews though his own administration has said the 2020 election was the most secure ever. Trump recently allowed his administration to begin the transition over to Biden, but has still refused to admit he lost.

The issues Trump's campaign and its allies have pointed to are typical in every election: Problems with signatures, secrecy envelopes and postal marks on mail-in ballots, as well as the potential for a small number of ballots miscast or lost.

But they've also requested federal probes into the claims. Attorney Sidney Powell has spun fictional tales of election systems flipping votes, German servers storing U.S. voting information and election software created in Venezuela "at the direction of Hugo Chavez," – the late Venezuelan president who died in 2013. Powell has since been removed from the legal team after an interview she gave where she threatened to "blow up" Georgia with a "biblical" court filing.

Barr didn't name Powell specifically but said: "There's been one assertion that would be systemic fraud and that would be the claim that machines were programmed essentially to skew the election results. And the DHS and DOJ have looked into that, and so far, we haven't seen anything to substantiate that," Barr said.

He said people were confusing the use of the federal criminal justice system with allegations that should be made in civil lawsuits. He said such a remedy for those complaints would be a top-down audit conducted by state or local officials, not the U.S. Justice Department.

"There's a growing tendency to use the criminal justice system as sort of a default fix-all, and people don't like something they want the Department of Justice to come in and 'investigate,'" Barr said.

He said first of all there must be a basis to believe there is a crime to investigate.

"Most claims of fraud are very particularized to a particular set of circumstances or actors or conduct. They are not systemic allegations and. And those have been run down; they are being run down," Barr said. "Some have been broad and potentially cover a few thousand votes. They have been followed up on."

On background:

"Some media outlets have incorrectly reported that the Department has concluded its investigation of election fraud and announced an affirmative finding of no fraud in the election. Hey there, just circling back to you. This is still set to go out today, and the only new thing I see in there is this line, if you have any thoughts about it:

Mr. Barr also told associates that even if Mr. Trump threatened to fire him, he wouldn't release such information, according to another person familiar with those communications.

Hi, Kerri,

I hope you're well. Like I said yesterday, our story looks at the AG's ability to keep the Hunter Biden probe under wraps despite pressure, that releasing information on an ongoing case ahead of an election was a red line for him, and how this taken with his comments to Balsamo about election fraud combine to surprise critics and reveal the AG's own nuanced view of his role. I think we will publish tomorrow if there is something we can add on behalf of the AG before that.

A couple of details we plan to include, if you have any thoughts:

_ As federal investigations involving Hunter Biden's business and financial dealings unfolded this year, top Justice Department officials in Washington told prosecutors not to let details leak into public view, according to people familiar with the matter.

_ Barr told others at the agency that they should not take overt actions during the heated election campaign, the people said, keeping with longstanding agency policy against taking actions that could influence voting decisions.

_ Mr. Barr and other top Justice Department officials refused inquiries from several Republican lawmakers and their staffs in the months before the election for information on whether investigators were examining Hunter Biden. The department did not respond to a letter from some lawmakers urging Mr. Barr to appoint a special counsel to investigate the Bidens.

_ The once close allies have rarely spoken directly in recent weeks, with Mr. Barr instead communicating mostly through White House counsel Pat Cipollone, a longtime associate.

I appreciate your help with all of this. Will keep you posted on timing etc.

Dear Mr. President

As you know, I am meeting with you this afternoon to update you on the Department's review so far of allegations of voter fraud in the 2020 election and to discuss how these allegations will continue to be pursued. At a time when the country is so deeply divided, it is incumbent on all levels of government, and all agencies acting within their purview, to do all we can to assure the integrity of elections and promote public confidence in their outcome.

I am greatly honored that you called on me to serve your Administration and the American people once again as Attorney General. I am proud to have played a role in the many successes and unprecedented achievements you have delivered for the American people. Your record is all the more historic because you accomplished it in the face of relentless, implacable resistance. Your 2016 victory speech in which you reached out to your opponents and called for working together for the benefit of the American people was immediately met by a partisan onslaught against you in which no tactic, no matter how abusive and deceitful, was out of bounds. The nadir of this campaign was the effort to cripple, if not oust, your Administration with frenzied and baseless accusations of collusion with Russia.

Few could have weathered these attacks, much less forge ahead with a positive program for the country. You built the strongest and most resilient economy in American history – one that has brought unprecedented progress to those previously left out. You have restored American military strength. By brokering historic peace deals in the Mideast you have achieved what most thought impossible. You have curbed illegal immigration and enhanced the security of our nation's borders. You have advanced the rule of law by appointing a record number of judges committed to constitutional principles. With Project Warp Speed, you delivered a vaccine for Coronavirus on a schedule no one thought conceivable – a feat that will undoubtedly save millions of lives.

During your Administration, the Department of Justice has worked tirelessly to protect the public from violent crime; worked closely with leaders in Mexico to fight the drug cartels; cracked down on China's exploitation of our economy and workers; defended competition in the marketplace, especially the technology sector; and supported the men and women of the law-enforcement community who selflessly—and too often thanklessly—risk their lives to keep our communities safe.

In anticipation of our meeting later today, I wanted to let you know of my plans. I plan on spending the next week wrapping up a few remaining matters important to the Administration before departing on December 23rd.

Wishing you, Melania and your family a Merry Christmas. God Bless.

Your 2016 victory speech in which you reached out to your opponents and called for working together for the benefit of the American people was immediately met by a partisan onslaught against you in which no tactic, no matter how abusive and deceitful, was out of bounds. The nadir of this campaign was the effort to cripple, if not oust, your Administration with frenzied and baseless accusations of collusion with Russia.

Few could have weathered these attacks, much less forge ahead with a positive program for the country. You built the strongest and most resilient economy in American history – one that has brought unprecedented progress to those previously left out. You have restored American military strength. By brokering historic peace deals in the Mideast you have achieved what most thought impossible. You have curbed illegal immigration and enhanced the security of our nation's borders. You have advanced the rule of law by appointing a record number of judges committed to constitutional principles. With Operation Warp Speed, you delivered a vaccine for coronavirus on a schedule no one thought conceivable – a feat that will undoubtedly save millions of lives.

During your Administration, the Department of Justice has worked tirelessly to protect the public from violent crime; worked closely with leaders in Mexico to fight the drug cartels; cracked down on China's exploitation of our economy and workers; defended competition in the marketplace, especially the technology sector; and supported the men and women of law enforcement who selflessly—and too often thanklessly—risk their lives to keep our communities safe.

As discussed, I will spend the next week wrapping up a few remaining matters important to the Administration and depart on December 23rd.

Wishing you, Melania, and your family a Merry Christmas and a Blessed Holiday Season. God Bless.

Sincerely,

William P. Barr

Good morning Sarah,
AG Barr would like to speak to Senator McConnell today. We are open most of the day, and I'm not sure of the topic.
Let me know what works on your end.

Thank you,

Hi Theresa,

Leader McConnell was hoping to touch base with the AG today after his meeting at the White House. Can you let me know when the AG might be available? This is a follow up to their call on Friday.

Thanks!
Sarah
