

No. 00-1865

---

---

IN THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT

RONALD CHISOLM,

Plaintiff-Appellant

v.

PATRICK McMANIMON, JR., DIRECTOR OF MERCER COUNTY
DETENTION CENTER; MERCER COUNTY COURT,

Defendants-Appellees

ON APPEAL FROM THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW JERSEY

BRIEF FOR THE UNITED STATES AS INTERVENOR

RALPH F. BOYD, JR.
Assistant Attorney General

JESSICA DUNSAY SILVER
SETH M. GALANTER
Attorneys
Civil Rights Division
Department of Justice
P.O. Box 66078
Washington, D.C. 20035-6078
(202) 307-9994

---

---

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	PAGE
STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES .....	1
STATEMENT OF THE CASE .....	2
SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT .....	6
ARGUMENT:
I.    CONGRESS VALIDLY REMOVED STATES' ELEVENTH AMENDMENT IMMUNITY TO PRIVATE SUITS UNDER TITLE II OF THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT .....	8
A. Congress Identified Ample Evidence Of A Long               History And A Continuing Problem Of Unconstitutional               Treatment Of Persons With Disabilities By States               And Made Express Findings On The Subject .....	11
1. Congressional Findings .....	12
2. Historic Discrimination .....	14
3. The Enduring Legacy of Governmental                   Discrimination .....	16
(a) Voting, Petitioning, and Access to                           Courts .....	18
(b) Education .....	22
(c) Law Enforcement .....	25
(d) Institutionalization .....	27
(e) Other Public Services .....	29
B. The Actions Covered By Title II Implicate               Both Equal Protection And Other Substantive               Constitutional Rights .....	31

TABLE OF CONTENTS (continued):	PAGE
C. Title II Is Reasonably Tailored To Remediating And Preventing Unconstitutional Discrimination Against Persons With Disabilities .....	34
D. In Light Of The Legislative Record And Findings And The Tailored Statutory Scheme, Title II And Its Abrogation Are Appropriate Section 5 Legislation .....	41
II. 42 U.S.C. 2000d-7 VALIDLY REMOVES ELEVENTH AMENDMENT IMMUNITY FOR PRIVATE CLAIMS UNDER SECTION 504 OF THE REHABILITATION ACT OF 1973 .....	50
A. Section 2000d-7 Is A Clear Statement That Accepting Federal Financial Assistance Would Constitute A Waiver To Private Suits Brought Under Section 504 .....	51
B. Congress Has Authority To Condition The Receipt Of Federal Financial Assistance On The State Waiving Its Eleventh Amendment Immunity .....	58
C. Section 504 Is A Valid Exercise Of The Spending Power .....	59
CONCLUSION .....	66
STATEMENT OF RELATED CASES .....	66
CERTIFICATE OF COMPLIANCE
CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

CASES:	PAGE
Aden v. Younger , 129 Cal. Rptr. (Ct. App. 1976) . . . . .	34
Albertsons, Inc. v. Kirkingburg , 527 U.S. 555 (1999) . . . . .	36
Alden v. Maine , 527 U.S. 706 (1999) . . . . .	58, 65
Alexander v. Choate , 469 U.S. 287 (1985) . . . . .	14
Alexander v. Sandoval , 121 S. Ct. 1511 (2001) . . . . .	61
Atascadero State Hosp. v. Scanlon , 473 U.S. 234 (1985) . . . . .	51, 52, 53, 55
Belanger v. Madera Unified Sch. Dist. , 963 F.2d 248 (9th Cir. 1992), cert. denied, 507 U.S. 919 (1993) . . . . .	42
Bell v. New Jersey , 461 U.S. 773 (1983) . . . . .	65
Board of County Comm'rs v. Umbehr , 518 U.S. 668 (1996) . . . . .	32
Board of Educ. v. Mergens , 496 U.S. 226 (1990) . . . . .	14, 45, 65
Board of Educ. v. Rowley , 458 U.S. 176 (1982) . . . . .	16
Brady v. United States , 397 U.S. 742 (1970) . . . . .	57
Brown v. Board of Educ. , 347 U.S. 483 (1954) . . . . .	23
Buck v. Bell , 274 U.S. 200 (1927) . . . . .	15
Burson v. Freeman , 504 U.S. 191 (1992) . . . . .	47
California v. United States , 104 F.3d 1086 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 522 U.S. 806 (1997) . . . . .	64
Carney v. Carney , 598 P.2d 36 (Cal. 1979) . . . . .	30
City of Boerne v. Flores , 521 U.S. 507 (1997) . . . . .	37, 47, 49
City of Cleburne v. Cleburne Living Ctr. , 473 U.S. 432 (1985) . . . . .	passim

CASES (continued):	PAGE
City of Rome v. United States , 446 U.S. 156 (1980) .....	38
Clark v. California , 123 F.3d 1267 (9th Cir. 1997), cert. denied, 524 U.S. 937 (1998) .....	51, 54
Clark v. Cohen , 794 F.2d 79 (3d Cir.), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 962 (1986) .....	29
College Sav. Bank v. Florida Prepaid Postsecondary Educ. Expense Bd. , 527 U.S. 666 (1999) .....	51, 53, 58
Dare v. California , 191 F.3d 1167 (9th Cir. 1999), cert. denied, 121 S. Ct. 1187 (2001) .....	10
Delaware Dep't of Health &amp; Soc. Servs. v. Department of Educ. 772 F.2d 1123 (3d Cir. 1985) .....	58
Erie v. Pap's A.M. , 529 U.S. 277 (2000) .....	46
Faretta v. California , 422 U.S. 806 (1975) .....	22
FERC v. Mississippi , 456 U.S. 742 (1982) .....	65
Fialkowski v. Shapp , 405 F. Supp. 946 (E.D. Pa. 1975) .....	34
Flakes v. Percy , 511 F. Supp. 1325 (W.D. Wis. 1981) .....	34
Florida Bar v. Went for It, Inc. , 515 U.S. 618 (1995) .....	47
Florida Prepaid Postsecondary Educ. Expense Bd. v. College Sav. Bank , 527 U.S. 627 (1999) .....	14, 18, 35, 47
Frederick L. v. Thomas , 408 F. Supp. 832 (E.D. Pa. 1976) .....	34
Fullilove v. Klutznick , 448 U.S. 448 (1980). .....	35, 38
Garcia v. SUNY Health Sciences Ctr. , No. 00-9223, 2001 WL 1159970 (2d Cir. Sept. 26, 2001) .....	48, 55-57
Garrity v. Gallen , 522 F. Supp. 171 (D.N.H. 1981) .....	34

CASES (continued):	PAGE
Gaston County v. United States , 395 U.S. 285 (1969) .....	38
Green v. County Sch. Bd. , 391 U.S. 430 (1968) .....	37
Grove City Coll. v. Bell , 465 U.S. 555 (1984) .....	61
Hairston v. Drosick , 423 F. Supp. 180 (S.D. W. Va. 1976) .....	34
Harper v. Virginia Bd. of Elections , 383 U.S. 663 (1966) .....	18
Harrelson v. Elmore County , 859 F. Supp. 1465 (M.D. Ala. 1994) .....	27
Harris v. Tooele County Sch. Dist. , 471 F.2d 218 (10th Cir. 1973), overruled, Ambus v. Granite Bd. of Educ. , 995 F.3d 992 (10th Cir. 1992) (en banc) .....	43
Helminski v. Ayerst Labs. , 766 F.2d 208 (6th Cir.), cert. denied, 474 U.S. 981 (1985) .....	22
In re Downey , 340 N.Y.S.2d 687 (Fam. Ct. 1973) .....	34
In re G.H. , 218 N.W.2d 441 (N.D. 1974) .....	34
Jim C. v. Arkansas Dep't of Educ. , 235 F.3d 1079 (8th Cir. 2000) (en banc), cert. denied, 121 S. Ct. 2591 (2001) .....	54, 59
Jimenez v. Weinberger , 417 U.S. 628 (1974) .....	33
Kansas v. United States , 214 F.3d 1196 (10th Cir.), cert. denied, 531 U.S. 1035 (2000) .....	64
Katzenbach v. Morgan , 384 U.S. 641 (1966) .....	18
Kilcullen v. New York Dep't of Labor , 205 F.3d 77 (2d Cir. 2000) .....	51
Kimel v. Florida Bd. of Regents , 528 U.S. 62 (2000) .....	47, 49, 50
LaFaut v. Smith , 834 F.2d 389 (4th Cir. 1987) .....	34
Lane v. Peña , 518 U.S. 187 (1996) .....	53

CASES (continued):	PAGE
Lau v. Nichols , 414 U.S. 563 (1974) .....	61
Lawlor v. National Screen Serv. Corp. , 211 F.2d 934 (3d Cir. 1954), rev'd on other grounds, 349 U.S. 322 (1955) .....	65
Litman v. George Mason Univ. , 186 F.3d 544 (4th Cir. 1999), cert. denied, 528 U.S. 1181 (2000) .....	54
Lopez v. Monterey County , 525 U.S. 266 (1999) .....	35
Lora v. Board of Educ. of N.Y. , 456 F. Supp. 1211 (E.D.N.Y. 1978) .....	34
Martinez v. Board of Educ. of Taos Mun. Sch. Dist. , 748 F.2d 1393 (10th Cir. 1984), overruled, Duke v. Grady Mun. Schs. , 127 F.3d 972 (10th Cir. 1997) .....	43
Mason v. United States , 84 U.S. 67 (1872) .....	63
Massachusetts v. Mellon , 262 U.S. 447 .....	63
M'Culloch v. Maryland , 17 U.S. 316 (1819) .....	49
McMillian v. Monroe County , 520 U.S. 781 (1997) .....	43
Mills v. Board of Educ. , 348 F. Supp. 866 (D.D.C. 1972) .....	34
M.L.B. v. S.L.J. , 519 U.S. 102 (1996) .....	33
Mt. Healthy City Sch. Dist. Bd. v. Doyle , 429 U.S. 274 (1977) .....	42
Murphy v. United Parcel Serv. , 527 U.S. 516 (1999) .....	36
Narin v. Lower Merion Sch. Dist. , 206 F.3d 323 (3d Cir. 2000) .....	9
NCAA v. Smith , 525 U.S. 459 (1999) .....	60
Newton v. Rumery , 480 U.S. 386 (1987) .....	56
New York State Ass'n for Retarded Children, Inc. v. Carey , 466 F. Supp. 487 (E.D.N.Y. 1979) .....	34

CASES (continued):	PAGE
New York v. United States , 505 U.S. 144 (1992) .....	65
Nihiser v. Ohio E.P.A. , No. 97-3933, 2001 WL 1220723 (6th Cir. Oct. 11, 2001) .....	54
Nixon v. Shrink Mo. Gov't PAC , 528 U.S. 377 (2000) .....	46
North Carolina ex rel. Morrow v. Califano , 445 F. Supp. 532 (E.D.N.C. 1977), aff'd mem., 435 U.S. 962 (1978) .....	64
Oklahoma v. Schweiker , 655 F.2d 401 (D.C. Cir. 1981) .....	64
Oklahoma v. United States Civil Serv. Comm'n , 330 U.S. 127 (1947) .....	62
Olmstead v. L.C. , 527 U.S. 581 (1999) .....	passim
Oregon v. Mitchell , 400 U.S. 112 (1970) .....	38
O'Connor v. Donaldson , 422 U.S. 563 (1975) .....	28, 34
O'Connor v. Ortega , 480 U.S. 709 (1987) .....	32
Panitch v. Wisconsin , 444 F. Supp. 320 (E.D. Wis. 1977) .....	34
Parrish v. Johnson , 800 F.2d 600 (6th Cir. 1986) .....	27
Pederson v. Louisiana State Univ. , 213 F.3d 858 (5th Cir. 2000) .....	54
Pennhurst State Sch. &amp; Hosp. v. Halderman , 451 U.S. 1 (1981) .....	56, 59, 60
Pennhurst State Sch. &amp; Hosp. v. Halderman , 465 U.S. 89 (1984) .....	56
Pennsylvania Ass'n for Retarded Children v. Commonwealth , 334 F. Supp. 1257 (E.D. Pa. 1971) .....	34
Petty v. Tennessee-Missouri Bridge Comm'n , 359 U.S. 275 (1959) .....	57
Plyler v. Doe , 457 U.S. 202 (1982) .....	33, 40
Railroad Co. v. County of Otoe , 83 U.S. 667 (1872) .....	43

CASES (continued):	PAGE
Reno v. Condon , 528 U.S. 141 (2000) .....	45
Rice v. Cayetano , 528 U.S. 495 (2000) .....	36
Rosenfeld v. Montgomery County Pub. Schs. , 41 F. Supp. 2d 581 (D. Md. 1999) .....	42
Salinas v. United States , 522 U.S. 52 (1997) .....	62
Sandoval v. Hagan , 197 F.3d 484 (11th Cir. 1999), rev'd on other grounds, 121 S. Ct. 1511 (2000) .....	54
Schneckloth v. Bustamonte , 412 U.S. 218 (1973) .....	56
School Bd. of Nassau County v. Arline , 480 U.S. 273 (1987) .....	2, 5, 60
South Carolina v. Katzenbach , 383 U.S. 301 (1966) .....	25, 38, 39, 44
South Dakota v. Dole , 483 U.S. 203 (1987) .....	passim
Stanley v. Litscher , 213 F.3d 340 (7th Cir. 2000) .....	54
State ex rel. Beattie v. Board of Educ. , 172 N.W. 153 (Wis. 1919) .....	16
Steward Mach. Co., v. Davis , 301 U.S. 548 (1937) .....	63, 64
Stoner v. Miller , 377 F. Supp. 177 (E.D.N.Y. 1974) .....	34
Strathie v. Department of Transp. 716 F.2d 227 (3d Cir. 1983) .....	5
Stump v. Sparkman , 435 U.S. 349 (1978) .....	16
Sutton v. United Air Lines, Inc. , 527 U.S. 471 (1999) .....	36
Thomas S. by Brooks v. Flaherty , 902 F.2d 250 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, 498 U.S. 951 (1990) .....	28-29
Thompson v. Colorado , 258 F.3d 1241 (2000) .....	44, 45
Turner Broad. Sys., Inc. v. FCC , 520 U.S. 180 (1997) .....	46

CASES (continued):	PAGE
Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. United States , 99 U.S. 700 (1878) . . . . .	45
United States v. Johnson , 67 F.3d 200 (9th Cir. 1995) . . . . .	57
United States v. Morrison , 529 U.S. 598 (2000) . . . . .	45
United States Dep't of Transp. v. Paralyzed Veterans of Am. , 477 U.S. 597 (1986) . . . . .	53
United States v. Virginia , 518 U.S. 515 (1996) . . . . .	41
University of Alabama v. Garrett , 121 S. Ct. 955 (2001) . . . . .	passim
Vecchione v. Wohlegemuth , 377 F. Supp. 1361 (E.D. Pa. 1974), aff'd, 558 F.2d 150 (3d Cir.), cert. denied, 434 U.S. 943 (1977) . . . . .	34
Walker v. Snyder , 213 F.3d 344 (7th Cir. 2000), cert. denied sub nom. United States v. Snyder , 121 S. Ct. 1188 (2001) . . . . .	42
Walters v. National Ass'n of Radiation Survivors , 473 U.S. 305 (1985) . . . . .	14
Washington v. Davis , 426 U.S. 229 (1976) . . . . .	38
Welsch v. Likins , 373 F. Supp. 487 (D. Minn. 1974), aff'd in part, 550 F.2d 1122 (8th Cir. 1977) . . . . .	34
Wyatt v. Stickney , 325 F. Supp. 781 (M.D. Ala. 1971), aff'd in part, 503 F.2d 1305 (5th Cir. 1974) . . . . .	34
Youngberg v. Romeo , 457 U.S. 307 (1982) . . . . .	28, 34

STATUTES AND CONSTITUTION:

United States Constitution:
Spending Clause, Art. I, § 8, Cl. 1 . . . . .	passim
First Amendment . . . . .	31
Fourth Amendment . . . . .	31
Fifth Amendment . . . . .	31
Sixth Amendment . . . . .	21, 31
Seventh Amendment . . . . .	31

STATUTES AND CONSTITUTION (continued): PAGE

Eighth Amendment .....	28, 31, 33
Eleventh Amendment .....	passim
Fourteenth Amendment .....	passim
Section 5 .....	passim
Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA), 42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq. .....	2
42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(2) .....	2, 17
42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(3) .....	3, 13, 17
42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(5) .....	3, 48
42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(6) .....	3
42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(7) .....	3
42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(9) .....	3
42 U.S.C. 12101(b)(1) .....	2
42 U.S.C. 12101(b)(4) .....	3
42 U.S.C. 12111-12117 (Title I) .....	passim
42 U.S.C. 12131-12165 (Title II) .....	passim
42 U.S.C. 12131(1) .....	13
42 U.S.C. 12131(1)(A) .....	4
42 U.S.C. 12131(1)(B) .....	4, 5
42 U.S.C. 12131(2) .....	4, 36, 37, 40
42 U.S.C. 12132 .....	4, 36
42 U.S.C. 12133 .....	5
42 U.S.C. 12181-12189 (Title III) .....	4
42 U.S.C. 12201(a) .....	56
42 U.S.C. 12201(b) .....	56
42 U.S.C. 12202 .....	5
Civil Rights Act of 1964, Titles III, IV, VI & VII
42 U.S.C. 2000b-2000e et seq. .....	42
Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act,
42 U.S.C. 1997 et seq. , Pub. L. No. 96-247, 94 Stat. 349. ....	28, 42
Developmental Disabilities Act of 1984,
42 U.S.C. 6000 et seq. .....	28
Education Amendments of 1972, Title IX,
20 U.S.C. 1681 .....	42
Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C. 701 et seq. ,
29 U.S.C. 701(a)(2) .....	2
29 U.S.C. 701(a)(5) .....	2, 3

STATUTES (continued): PAGE

29 U.S.C. 794 (Section 504) ..... passim
 29 U.S.C. 794(a) ..... 5, 50
 29 U.S.C. 794(b) ..... 5

Voting Rights Act of 1965,
 42 U.S.C. 1973 et seq. ..... 42

42 U.S.C. 2000d-7 ..... passim

104 Stat. 337 ..... 13

REGULATIONS:

28 C.F.R. 35.130(b)(7) ..... 4, 40

28 C.F.R. 35.150(a)(1) ..... 4

28 C.F.R. 35.150(a)(3) ..... 4, 40

28 C.F.R. 35.151 ..... 4

28 C.F.R. 35.164 ..... 4, 40

28 C.F.R. 42.504(a) ..... 60

RULES:

Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(c) ..... 63

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY:

Americans with Disabilities Act: Hearing Before the House Comm. on Small Bus., 101st Cong., 2d Sess. (1990) ..... 11

*Americans with Disabilities Act: Hearing on H.R.
 2273 and S. 933 Before the Subcomm. on Transp.
 and Haz. Materials of the House Comm. on Energy and Commerce, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1990)* ..... 11

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY (continued):	PAGE
Americans with Disabilities Act: Hearings on H.R. 2273 Before the Subcomm. on Surface Transp. of the House Comm. on Pub. Works and Transp., 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1990) .....	11
Americans with Disabilities Act of 1989: Hearings on H.R. 2273 Before the House Comm. of the Judiciary and the Subcomm. on Civil and Const. Rights, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989) .....	11
Americans with Disabilities Act of 1989: Hearing on H.R. 2273 Before the Subcomm. on Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989) .....	11
Americans with Disabilities Act of 1989: Hearings on S. 933 Before the Senate Comm. on Labor and Human Res. and the Subcomm. on the Handicapped, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989) .....	11
Americans with Disabilities Act of 1988: Joint Hearing on S. 2345 Before the Subcomm. on the Handicapped of the Senate Comm. on Labor and Human Res. and the Subcomm. on Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (1989) .....	11
Americans with Disabilities: Telecomm. Relay Servs., Hearing on Title V of H.R. 2273 Before the Subcomm. on Telecomm. and Finance of the House Comm. on Energy and Commerce, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1990) .....	11
Civil Rights of Instit. Persons: Hearings on H.R. 10 Before the Subcomm. on Courts, Civil Liberties, and the Admin. of Justice of the House Comm. on the Judiciary, 96th Cong., 1st Sess. (1979) .....	28
Civil Rights of Instit. Persons: Hearings on H.R. 2439 and H.R. 5791 Before the Subcomm. on Courts, Civil Liberties, and the Admin. of Justice, of the House Comm. on the Judiciary, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. (1977) .....	28
Civil Rights of Instit. Persons: Hearings on S. 1393 Before the Subcomm. on the Const. of the Senate Comm. on the Judiciary, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. (1977) .....	28

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY (continued):	PAGE
Education for All Handicapped Children, 1973-1974: Hearings Before the Subcomm. on the Handicapped of the Senate Comm. on Labor and Pub. Welfare, 93d Cong., 1st Sess. (1973) .....	24
Equal Access to Voting for Elderly and Disabled Persons: Hearings Before the Task Force on Elections of the House Comm. on House Admin., 98th Cong., 1st Sess. (1984) .....	19, 20
Field Hearing on Americans with Disabilities Act: Hearing Before the Subcomm. on Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989) .....	11
Hearing on H.R. 2273, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1989: Joint Hearing Before the Subcomm. on Employment Opportunities and Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (July 18 &amp; Sept. 13, 1989) .....	11
Oversight Hearing on H.R. 4498, Americans with Dis- abilities Act of 1988: Hearing Before the Subcomm. on Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (1989) .....	11
22 Weekly Comp. Pres. Doc. 1421 (Oct. 27, 1986) .....	54
Staff of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 101st Cong., 2d Sess., Legis. Hist. of Pub. L. No. 101-336: The Americans with Disabilities Act, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (Comm. Print 1990) (Volumes 2 & 3) .....	passim
H.R. Rep. No. 485, 101st Cong., 2d Sess. (1990):
Pt. 2 .....	passim
Pt. 3 .....	26, 30
S. Rep. No. 116, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989) .....	passim
S. Rep. No. 388, 99th Cong., 2d Sess. (1986) .....	52
110 Cong. Rec. 6544 (1964) .....	62
131 Cong. Rec. 22,346 (1985) .....	52
132 Cong. Rec. 28,624 (1986) .....	54
132 Cong. Rec. S5914-01 (daily ed. May 14, 1986) .....	28
134 Cong. Rec. E1311 (daily ed. Apr. 28, 1988) .....	17

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY (continued):	PAGE
136 Cong. Rec. H2480 (daily ed. May 17, 1990) .....	23
136 Cong. Rec. H2633 (daily ed. May 22, 1990) .....	26
 MISCELLANEOUS:
Advisory Comm'n on Intergovernmental Relations, Disability Rights Mandates: Federal and State Compliance with Employment Protections and Architectural Barrier Removal (1989) .....	22
Calif. Att'y Gen., Commission on Disability: Final Report (1989) .....	passim
Civil Rights Comm'n, Accommodating the Spectrum of Individual Abilities (1983) .....	passim
FEC, Polling Place Accessibility in the 1988 General Election (1989) .....	20
J. Shapiro, No Pity (1994) .....	25, 30
Louis Harris & Associates: The ICD Survey II: Employing Disabled Americans (1987) .....	12
The ICD Survey of Disabled Americans: Bringing Disabled Americans into the Mainstream (1986) .....	12
National Council on the Handicapped: On the Threshold of Independence (1988) .....	12, 25
Toward Independence: An Assessment of Federal Laws and Programs Affecting Persons with Disabilities (1986) .....	12
Note, Mental Disability and the Right to Vote , 88 Yale L.J. 1644 (1979) .....	15
Presidential Commission on the Human Immunodeficiency Virus Epidemic (1988) .....	12
Task Force on the Rights and Empowerment of Americans with Disabilities, From ADA to Empowerment (1990) .....	12, 31, 40
T. Cook, The Americans with Disabilities Act: The Move to Integration , 64 Temp. L. Rev. 393, 399-407 (1991) .....	16

IN THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT

---

No. 00-1865

RONALD CHISOLM,

Plaintiff-Appellant

v.

PATRICK McMANIMON, JR., DIRECTOR OF MERCER COUNTY
DETENTION CENTER; MERCER COUNTY COURT,

Defendants-Appellees

---

ON APPEAL FROM THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW JERSEY

---

BRIEF FOR THE UNITED STATES AS INTERVENOR

---

STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES

The United States will address the following questions:

1. Whether the statutory provision removing Eleventh Amendment immunity for suits under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. 12131 et seq., is a valid exercise of Congress's authority under Section 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment.

2. Whether the statutory provision removing Eleventh Amendment immunity for suits under Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, 29 U.S.C. 794, is a valid exercise of Congress's authority under the Spending Clause or Section 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

1. Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C. 794, contains an “antidiscrimination mandate” that was enacted to “enlist[] all programs receiving federal funds” in Congress’s attempt to eliminate discrimination against individuals with disabilities. School Bd. of Nassau County v. Arline, 480 U.S. 273, 286 n.15, 277 (1987). Congress found that “individuals with disabilities constitute one of the most disadvantaged groups in society,” and that they “continually encounter various forms of discrimination in such critical areas as employment, housing, public accommodations, education, transportation, communication, recreation, institutionalization, health services, voting, and public services.” 29 U.S.C. 701(a)(2) & (a)(5).

2. Finding that Section 504 was not sufficient to bar discrimination against individuals with disabilities, Congress enacted the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA), 42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq., to establish a “comprehensive national mandate for the elimination of discrimination against individuals with disabilities.” 42 U.S.C. 12101(b)(1). Congress found that “historically, society has tended to isolate and segregate individuals with disabilities,” and that “such forms of discrimination against individuals with disabilities continue to be a serious and pervasive social problem.” 42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(2). Discrimination against persons with disabilities “persists in such critical areas as employment, housing, public accommodations, education, transportation, communication, recreation, institutionalization, health services, voting, and access to public services.” 42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(3). In addition, persons with disabilities continually encounter various forms of discrimination, including outright intentional exclusion, the discriminatory effects of architectural, transportation, and communication barriers, overprotective rules and policies, failure to make modifications to existing facilities and practices, exclusionary qualification standards and criteria, segregation, and relegation to lesser services, programs, activities, benefits, jobs, or other opportunities.

42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(5).

Furthermore, “people with disabilities, as a group, occupy an inferior status in our society, and are severely disadvantaged socially, vocationally, economically, and educationally.” 42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(6). “[T]he continuing existence of unfair and unnecessary discrimination and prejudice,” Congress concluded, “denies people with disabilities the opportunity to compete on an equal basis and to pursue those opportunities for which our free society is justifiably famous.” 42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(9). In short, Congress found that persons with disabilities have been faced with restrictions and limitations, subjected to a history of purposeful unequal treatment, and relegated to a position of political powerlessness in our society, based on characteristics that are beyond the control of such individuals and resulting from stereotypic assumptions not truly indicative of the individual ability of such individuals to participate in, and contribute to, society.

42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(7).

Based on those findings, Congress “invoke[d] the sweep of congressional authority, including the power to enforce the fourteenth amendment” as authority for its passage of the ADA. 42 U.S.C. 12101(b)(4). The ADA targets three particular areas of discrimination against persons with disabilities. Title I, 42

U.S.C. 12111-12117, addresses discrimination by employers affecting interstate commerce; Title II, 42 U.S.C. 12131-12165, addresses discrimination by governmental entities in the operation of public services, programs, and activities, including transportation; and Title III, 42 U.S.C. 12181-12189, addresses discrimination in public accommodations operated by private entities.

3. This case involves a suit filed under Title II and Section 504. Title II provides that “no qualified individual with a disability shall, by reason of such disability, be excluded from participation in or be denied the benefits of the services, programs, or activities of a public entity, or be subjected to discrimination by any such entity.” 42 U.S.C. 12132. A “public entity” is defined to include “any State or local government” and its components. 42 U.S.C. 12131(1)(A) and (B). A “[q]ualified individual with a disability” is a person “who, with or without reasonable modifications * * * meets the essential eligibility requirements” for the governmental program or service. 42 U.S.C. 12131(2). Title II does not normally require a public entity to make its existing physical facilities accessible, although alterations of those facilities and any new facilities must be made accessible. 28 C.F.R. 35.150(a)(1), 35.151. Department of Justice regulations provide that, except for new construction and alterations, public entities need not take any steps that would “result in a fundamental alteration in the nature of a service, program, or activity or in undue financial and administrative burdens.” 28 C.F.R. 35.150(a)(3); see also 28 C.F.R. 35.130(b)(7), 35.164; Olmstead v. L.C., 527 U.S. 581, 606 n.16 (1999). Title II may be enforced through private suits against public entities. 42 U.S.C. 12133. Congress expressly abrogated the States' Eleventh Amendment immunity to private suits in federal court. 42 U.S.C. 12202.

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 provides that “[n]o otherwise qualified individual with a disability in the United States * * * shall, solely by reason of her or his disability, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.” 29 U.S.C. 794(a). A “program or activity” is defined to include “all of the operations” of a state agency, university, or public system of higher education “any part of which is extended Federal financial assistance.” 29 U.S.C. 794(b). As with Title II, protections under Section 504 are limited to “otherwise qualified” individuals, that is those persons who can meet the “essential” eligibility requirements of the relevant program or activity with or without “reasonable accommodation[s].” Arline, 480 U.S. at 287 n.17. An accommodation is not reasonable if it either imposes “undue financial and administrative burdens” on the grantee or requires “a fundamental alteration in the nature of [the] program.” Ibid. Section 504 may be enforced through private suits against programs or activities receiving federal funds. See Strathie v. Department of Transp., 716 F.2d 227, 229 (3d Cir. 1983). Congress expressly removed the States' Eleventh Amendment immunity to private suits in federal court. 42 U.S.C. 2000d-7.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

The Eleventh Amendment is no bar to this action brought by a private plaintiff under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act to remedy discrimination against persons with disabilities.

1. The Supreme Court in University of Alabama v. Garrett, 121 S. Ct. 955 (2001), reaffirmed that Congress had the power to abrogate States' Eleventh Amendment immunity to private damage actions under Section 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment, which authorizes Congress to enact "appropriate legislation" to "enforce" the rights protected by Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment. Garrett held that Congress's abrogation for Title I of the ADA was not "appropriate" because Congress had only identified six examples of potentially unconstitutional discrimination by States against people with disabilities in employment and there was no evidence that Congress had made a legislative judgment that such discrimination by States was pervasive. The record before Congress of constitutional violations in employment did not provide a sufficient basis for Congress to abrogate immunity for a statutory scheme that was designed to remedy and deter constitutional violations.

In contrast, the record before Congress supported Congress's decision to abrogate Eleventh Amendment immunity for Title II. Congress assembled a record of constitutional violations by States – violations not only of the Equal Protection Clause but also of the full spectrum of constitutional rights the Fourteenth Amendment incorporates – which Congress in its findings determined “persist[ed]” in areas controlled exclusively or predominantly by States, such as education, voting, institutionalization, and public services. These well-supported findings justify the tailored remedial scheme embodied in Title II. Congress formulated a statute that is carefully designed to root out present instances of unconstitutional discrimination, to undo the effects of past discrimination, and to prevent future unconstitutional treatment by prohibiting discrimination and promoting integration where reasonable. At the same time, Title II preserves the latitude and flexibility States legitimately require in the administration of their programs and services. Title II accomplishes those objectives by requiring States to afford persons with disabilities genuinely equal access to services and programs, while at the same time confining the statute’s protections to “qualified individual[s],” who by definition meet all of the States’ legitimate and essential eligibility requirements. Title II simply requires “reasonable” modifications that do not impose an undue burden and do not fundamentally alter the nature or character of the governmental program. The statute is thus carefully tailored to prohibit only state conduct that presents a substantial risk of violating the Constitution or that unreasonably perpetuates the exclusionary effects of the prior irrational governmental segregation of persons with disabilities.

2. In addition, Congress validly removed States’ immunity to private suits brought to enforce Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. Section 2000d-7 of Title 42 contains an express statutory provision removing Eleventh Amendment immunity for Section 504 suits. If this Court upholds the constitutionality of Title

II's abrogation, then the validity of Section 2000d-7 follows as a matter of course. In any event, this provision is a valid exercise of Congress's power under the Spending Clause to impose unambiguous conditions on States receiving federal funds. By enacting Section 2000d-7, Congress put state agencies on notice that accepting federal funds waived their Eleventh Amendment immunity to discrimination suits under Section 504.

ARGUMENT

I

CONGRESS VALIDLY REMOVED STATES' ELEVENTH AMENDMENT IMMUNITY TO PRIVATE SUITS UNDER TITLE II OF THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT

In University of Alabama v. Garrett, 121 S. Ct. 955, 962 (2001), the Supreme Court reaffirmed that Section 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment grants Congress the power to abrogate the States' Eleventh Amendment immunity to private damage suits. In assessing the validity of "§ 5 legislation reaching beyond the scope of § 1's actual guarantees," the legislation "must exhibit 'congruence and proportionality between the injury to be prevented or remedied and the means adopted to that end.'" Garrett, 121 S. Ct. at 963 (quoting City of Boerne v. Flores, 521 U.S. 507, 520 (1997)). This requires a three-step analysis: first, a court must "identify with some precision the scope of the constitutional right at issue," id. at 963; second, the court must "examine whether Congress identified a history and pattern of unconstitutional * * * discrimination by the States against the disabled," id. at 964; finally, the Court must assess whether the "rights and remedies created” by the statute were “designed to guarantee meaningful enforcement” of the constitutional rights that Congress determined the States were violating, id. at 966, 967.

Applying these “now familiar principles,” id. at 963, the Court in Garrett held that Congress did not validly abrogate States’ Eleventh Amendment immunity to suits by private individuals for money damages under Title I of the ADA. The Court concluded that Congress had identified only “half a dozen” incidents of relevant conduct (i.e., potentially unconstitutional discrimination by States as employers against people with disabilities), id. at 965, and had not made a specific finding that discrimination in public sector employment was pervasive, id. at 966. Thus, the Court held, Congress did not assemble a sufficient basis to justify Title I’s abrogation of Eleventh Amendment immunity for its prophylactic statutory remedies. Id. at 967.

The Supreme Court specifically reserved the question that defendant Mercer Vicinage has raised with this Court, whether Title II’s abrogation can be upheld as valid Section 5 legislation.<sup>1</sup> The Supreme Court noted that Title II “has somewhat different remedial provisions from Title I,” id. at 960 n.1, and that the legislative record for those activities governed by Title II was more extensive, see id. at 966 n.7. Less than a week after deciding Garrett, the Supreme Court denied a petition for certiorari filed by California and let stand the Ninth Circuit’s holding that Title II’s abrogation was valid Section 5 legislation. See Dare v. California, 191 F.3d 1167 (9th Cir. 1999), cert. denied, 121 S. Ct. 1187 (2001).

---

<sup>1</sup> The United States takes no position on whether defendant Mercer Vicinage is entitled to the States’ Eleventh Amendment immunity, or whether it forfeited its right to invoke immunity by failing to press the issue below. We note that defendant McManimon, sued in his official capacity as director of the Mercer County Detention Center, has not argued that he is entitled to the State’s Eleventh Amendment immunity and is thus subject to suit regardless of the resolution of the issues discussed in this brief. Cf. Narin v. Lower Merion Sch. Dist., 206 F.3d 323, (continued...)

As the Court’s disposition of Dare indicates, Garrett does not imply that Title II’s abrogation exceeds Congress’s power under Section 5. For Title II differs from Title I in four significant respects. First, Congress made express findings of persistent discrimination in “public services” generally, including services provided by States, as well as specific areas of traditional state concern, such as voting, education, and institutionalization. Second, Congress’s findings were based on an extensive record of unconstitutional state conduct regarding people with disabilities in the areas covered by Title II, a record more extensive than existed for employment alone. Third, unlike Title I, which was intended simply to redress violations of the Equal Protection Clause as applied to a non-suspect class in an area (employment) not otherwise subject to heightened scrutiny, the range of constitutional violations implicated by Title II extends to areas where heightened judicial scrutiny is appropriate and where even policies subject to rational-basis review cannot always be justified by cost or administrative efficiency alone. Finally, the remedy enacted by Congress is more proportional and congruent to this record of violations than the record discussed in

---

<sup>1</sup>(...continued)
331 n.6 (3d Cir. 2000).

Garrett. We address each point in turn.

A. Congress Identified Ample Evidence Of A Long History And A Continuing Problem Of Unconstitutional Treatment Of Persons With Disabilities By States And Made Express Findings On The Subject

Congress engaged in extensive study and fact-finding concerning the problem of discrimination against persons with disabilities, holding 13 hearings devoted specifically to the consideration of the ADA.<sup>2</sup> In addition, a

---

<sup>2</sup> See Americans with Disabilities Act of 1989: Hearings on H.R. 2273 Before the House Comm. on the Judiciary and the Subcomm. on Civil and Const. Rights, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989); Americans with Disabilities Act: Hearing on H.R. 2273 and S. 933 Before the Subcomm. on Transp. and Haz. Materials of the House Comm. on Energy and Commerce, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1990); Americans with Disabilities Act: Hearings on H.R. 2273 Before the Subcomm. on Surface Transp. of the House Comm. on Pub. Works and Transp., 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1990); Americans with Disabilities: Telecomm. Relay Servs., Hearing on Title V of H.R. 2273 Before the Subcomm. on Telecomm. and Fin. of the House Comm. on Energy and Commerce, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1990); Americans with Disabilities Act of 1989: Hearing on H.R. 2273 Before the Subcomm. on Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989); Field Hearing on Americans with Disabilities Act: Hearing Before the Subcomm. on Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989); Hearing on H.R. 2273, The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1989: Joint Hearing Before the Subcomm. on Employment Opps. and Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (July 18 & Sept. 13, 1989); Oversight Hearing on H.R. 4498, Americans with Disabilities Act of 1988: Hearing Before the Subcomm. on Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. (1989); Americans with Disabilities Act: Hearing Before the House Comm. on Small Bus., 101st Cong., 2d Sess. (1990); Americans with Disabilities Act of 1989: Hearings on S. 933 Before the Senate Comm. on Labor and Human Res. and the Subcomm. on the Handicapped, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. (1989) (May 1989 Hearings); Americans with Disabilities Act of 1988: Joint Hearing on S. 2345 Before the Subcomm. on the Handicapped of the Senate Comm. on Labor

(continued...)

congressionally designated Task Force held 63 public forums across the country, which were attended by more than 7,000 individuals. Task Force on the Rights and Empowerment of Americans with Disabilities, From ADA to Empowerment 18 (1990) (Task Force Report). The Task Force also presented to Congress evidence submitted by nearly 5,000 individuals documenting the problems with discrimination faced daily by persons with disabilities – often at the hands of state governments. See 2 Staff of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 101st Cong., 2d Sess., Legis. Hist. of Pub. L. No. 101-336: The Americans with Disabilities Act, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. 1040 (Comm. Print 1990) (Leg. Hist.); Task Force Report 16. Congress also considered several reports and surveys. See S. Rep. No. 116, 101st Cong., 1st Sess. 6 (1989); H.R. Rep. No. 485, Pt. 2, 101st Cong., 2d Sess. 28 (1990); Task Force Report 16.<sup>3</sup>

1. Congressional Findings: As the Supreme Court in Garrett acknowledged, 121 S. Ct. at 966 n.7, the record of adverse conduct by States toward people with disabilities was both broader and deeper than the six incidents

---

<sup>2</sup>(...continued)

and Human Res. and the Subcomm. on Select Educ. of the House Comm. on Educ. and Labor, 100th Cong., 2nd Sess. (1989).

<sup>3</sup> These included the two reports of the National Council on the Handicapped; the Civil Rights Commission's Accommodating the Spectrum of Individual Abilities (1983) (Spectrum); two polls conducted by Louis Harris & Assoc., The ICD Survey of Disabled Americans: Bringing Disabled Americans into the Mainstream (1986), and The ICD Survey II: Employing Disabled Americans (1987); a report by the Presidential Commission on the Human Immunodeficiency Virus Epidemic (1988); and eleven interim reports submitted by the Task Force.

Congress identified with regard to state employment. Equally important, after amassing the record we discuss below, Congress brought its legislative judgment to bear on the issue and expressly found that discrimination was pervasive in these areas. Unlike state employment, where Congress made a finding about private employment, but no analogous finding for public employment, id. at 966, in the text of statute itself Congress made express findings of persisting discrimination in “education, * * * institutionalization, * * * voting, and access to public services.” 42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(3). The first three areas are fields predominated by States and the last is, under the terms of the statute, the exclusive domain of state and local governments. See 104 Stat. 337 (title of Title II is “Public Services”); 42 U.S.C. 12131(1) (limiting term “public entity” to state and local governments and Amtrak). Similarly, the same Committee Reports that the Court in Garrett found lacking with regard to public employment are directly on point with regard to public services, declaring that “there exists a compelling need to establish a clear and comprehensive Federal prohibition of discrimination on the basis of disability in the areas of employment in the private sector, public accommodations, public services, transportation, and telecommunications.” H.R. Rep. No. 485, supra, Pt. 2, at 28 (emphasis added); see also S. Rep. No. 116, supra, at 6 (“Discrimination still persists in such critical areas as employment in the private sector, public accommodations, public services, transportation, and telecommunications.” (emphasis added)). The judgment of a co-equal branch of government – embodied in the text of the statute and its committee reports – that a pattern of State discrimination persists and requires a federal remedy is entitled to “a great deal of deference, inasmuch as Congress is an institution better equipped to amass and evaluate the vast amounts of data bearing on such an issue.” Walters v. National Ass’n of Radiation Survivors, 473 U.S. 305, 331 n.12 (1985); see also Board of Educ. v. Mergens, 496 U.S. 226, 251 (1990). This judgment was supported by ample evidence.

2. Historic Discrimination: The “propriety of any § 5 legislation ‘must be judged with reference to the historical experience . . . it reflects.’” Florida Prepaid Postsec. Educ. Expense Bd. v. College Sav. Bank, 527 U.S. 627, 640 (1999). Congress and the Supreme Court have long acknowledged the Nation’s “history of unfair and often grotesque mistreatment” of persons with disabilities. City of Cleburne v. Cleburne Living Ctr., 473 U.S. 432, 454 (1985) (Stevens, J., concurring); see id. at 461 (Marshall, J., concurring in the judgment in part); see also Olmstead v. L.C., 527 U.S. 581, 608 (Kennedy, J., concurring) (“[O]f course, persons with mental disabilities have been subject to historic mistreatment, indifference, and hostility.”); Alexander v. Choate, 469 U.S. 287, 295 n.12 (1985) (“well-cataloged instances of invidious discrimination against the handicapped do exist”).

That “lengthy and tragic history,” Cleburne, 473 U.S. at 461 (Marshall, J.), of discrimination, segregation, and denial of basic civil and constitutional rights for persons with disabilities assumed an especially pernicious form in the early 1900s, when the eugenics movement and Social Darwinism labeled persons with mental and physical disabilities “a menace to society and civilization . . . responsible in a large degree for many, if not all, of our social problems.” Id. at 462 (Marshall, J.); see also Civil Rights Comm’n, Accommodating the Spectrum of Individual Abilities 19 (1983) (Spectrum). Persons with disabilities were portrayed as “sub-human creatures” and “waste products” responsible for poverty and crime. Spectrum 20. “A regime of state-mandated segregation and degradation soon emerged that in its virulence and bigotry rivaled, and indeed paralleled, the worst excesses of Jim Crow.” Cleburne, 473 U.S. at 462 (Marshall, J.). Every single State, by law, provided for the segregation of persons with mental disabilities and, frequently, epilepsy, and excluded them from public schools and other state services and privileges of citizenship.<sup>4</sup> States also fueled the fear and isolation of persons with disabilities by requiring public officials and parents, sometimes at risk of criminal prosecution, to report and segregate into institutions the “feeble-minded.” Spectrum 20, 33-34. With the aim of halting reproduction and “nearly extinguish[ing] their race,” Cleburne, 473 U.S. at 462 (Marshall, J.), almost every State accompanied forced segregation with compulsory sterilization and prohibitions of marriage, see id. at 463; see also Buck v. Bell, 274 U.S. 200, 207 (1927) (upholding state compulsory sterilization law “in order to prevent our being swamped with incompetence”); 3 Leg. Hist. 2242 (James Ellis).

---

<sup>4</sup> See also Cleburne, 473 U.S. at 463 (Marshall, J.) (state laws deemed persons with mental disorders “unfit for citizenship”); Note, Mental Disability and the Right to Vote, 88 Yale L.J. 1644 (1979).

Children with mental disabilities were labeled “ineducable” and categorically excluded from public schools to “protect nonretarded children from them.” Cleburne, 473 U.S. at 463 (Marshall, J.); see also Board of Educ. v. Rowley, 458 U.S. 176, 191 (1982) (“many of these children were excluded completely from any form of public education”).<sup>5</sup> Numerous States also restricted the rights of physically disabled people to enter into contracts. See Spectrum 40.

3. The Enduring Legacy of Governmental Discrimination: “Prejudice, once let loose, is not easily cabined.” Cleburne, 473 U.S. at 464 (Marshall, J.). “[O]utdated statutes are still on the books, and irrational fears or ignorance, traceable to the prolonged social and cultural isolation” of those with disabilities “continue to stymie recognition of the[ir] dignity and individuality.” Id. at 467 (emphasis added).<sup>6</sup> Consequently, “our society is still infected by the ancient, now almost

---

<sup>5</sup> See also State ex rel. Beattie v. Board of Educ., 172 N.W. 153, 153 (Wis. 1919) (approving exclusion of a boy with cerebral palsy from public school because he “produces a depressing and nauseating effect upon the teachers and school children”) (noted at 2 Leg. Hist. 2243); see generally T. Cook, The Americans with Disabilities Act: The Move to Integration, 64 Temp. L. Rev. 393, 399-407 (1991) .

<sup>6</sup> For example, as recently as 1983, 15 States continued to have compulsory sterilization laws on the books, four of which included persons with epilepsy. Spectrum 37; see also Stump v. Sparkman, 435 U.S. 349, 351 (1978) (Indiana judge ordered the sterilization of a “somewhat retarded” 15-year-old girl). As of 1979, “most States still categorically disqualified ‘idiots’ from voting, without regard to individual capacity and with discretion to exclude left in the hands of low-level election officials.” Cleburne, 473 U.S. at 464 (Marshall, J.).

subconscious assumption that people with disabilities are less than fully human and therefore are not fully eligible for the opportunities, services, and support systems which are available to other people as a matter of right. The result is massive, society-wide discrimination.” S. Rep. No. 116, supra, at 8-9.<sup>7</sup>

Moreover, as we detail below based on the testimony of hundreds of witnesses before Congress and at the Task Force’s forums,<sup>8</sup> Congress found, as a matter of present reality and historical fact, that discrimination pervaded state governmental operations and that persons with disabilities have been and are subjected to “widespread and persisting deprivation of [their] constitutional <sup>7</sup> See also 3 Leg. Hist. 2020 (Att’y Gen. Thornburgh) (“But persons with disabilities are all too often not allowed to participate because of stereotypical notions held by others in society – notions that have, in large measure, been created by ignorance and maintained by fear.”); 2 Leg. Hist. 1606 (Arlene Mayerson) (“Most people assume that disabled children are excluded from school or segregated from their non-disabled peers because they cannot learn or because they need special protection. Likewise, the absence of disabled co-workers is simply considered confirmation of the obvious fact that disabled people can’t work. These assumptions are deeply rooted in history.”); 134 Cong. Rec. E1311 (daily ed. 1988) (Rep. Owens) (“The invisibility of disabled Americans was simply taken for granted. Disabled people were out of sight and out of mind.”).

---

<sup>8</sup> The Task Force submitted to Congress “several thousand documents” evidencing “massive discrimination and segregation in all aspects of life” and “the most extreme isolation, unemployment, poverty, psychological abuse and physical deprivation experienced by any segment of our society.” 2 Leg. Hist. 1324-1325. Those documents – mostly handwritten letters and commentaries collected during the Task Force’s forums – were part of the official legislative history of the ADA. See id. at 1336, 1389. Both the majority and dissent in Garrett relied on these documents, see 121 S. Ct. at 965, with the dissent citing to them by State and Bates stamp number, id. at 976-993 (Breyer, J., dissenting), a practice we follow.

rights.” Florida Prepaid, 527 U.S. at 645; see 42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(2) and (a)(3).

In particular, Congress reasonably discerned a substantial risk that persons with disabilities will be subjected to unconstitutional discrimination by state governments in the form of “arbitrary or irrational” distinctions and exclusions, Cleburne, 473 U.S. at 446. In addition, the evidence before Congress established that States structure governmental programs and operations in a manner that has the effect of denying persons with disabilities the equal opportunity to obtain vital services and to exercise fundamental rights (such as the rights to vote, to petition government officials, to contract, to adequate custodial treatment, and to equal access to the courts and public education) in violation of the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, and Fourteenth Amendments. The scope of the testimony offered to Congress regarding unconstitutional treatment swept so broadly, touching virtually every aspect of individuals’ encounters with their government, as to defy isolating the problem into select categories of state action. Nonetheless, by necessity, we have divided the evidence into sections touching on various areas of constitutional import.

(a) Voting, Petitioning and Access to Courts: Voting is the right that is “preservative of all rights,” Katzenbach v. Morgan, 384 U.S. 641, 652 (1966), and the Equal Protection Clause subjects voting classifications to strict scrutiny to guarantee “the opportunity for equal participation by all voters” in elections, Harper v. Virginia Bd. of Elections, 383 U.S. 663, 670 (1966).

Congress heard that “in the past years people with disabilities have been turned away from the polling places after they have been registered to vote because they did not look competent.” 2 Leg. Hist. 1220 (Nancy Husted-Jensen). When one witness turned in the registration card of a voter who has cerebral palsy and is blind, the “clerk of the board of canvassers looked aghast * * * and said to me, ‘Is that person competent? Look at that signature.’” The clerk then arbitrarily invented a reason to reject the registration. Id. at 1219. Congress was also aware that a deaf voter was told that “you have to be able to use your voice” to vote. Equal Access to Voting for Elderly and Disabled Persons: Hearings Before the Task Force on Elections of the House Comm. on House Admin., 98th Cong., 1st Sess. 94 (1984) (Equal Access to Voting Hearings). “How can disabled people have clout with our elected officials when they are aware that many of us are prevented from voting?” Ark. 155.<sup>9</sup>

---

<sup>9</sup> “A blind woman, a new resident of Alabama, went to vote and was refused instructions on the operation of the voting machine.” Ala. 16. Another voter with a disability was “told to go home once when I came to the poll and found the voting machines down a flight of stairs with no paper ballots available”; on another occasion that voter “had to shout my choice of candidates over the noise of a crowd to a precinct judge who pushed the levers of the machine for me, feeling all the while as if I had to offer an explanation for my decisions.” Equal Access to Voting Hearings 45. The legislative record also documented that many persons with disabilities “cannot exercise one of your most basic rights as an American” because polling places were frequently inaccessible. S. Rep. No. 116, supra, at 12. As a consequence, persons with disabilities “were forced to vote by absentee ballot before key debates by the candidates were held.” Ibid.; see also May 1989 Hearings 76 (Ill. Att’y Gen. Hartigan) (similar). And even when persons with disabilities have voted absentee, they have been treated differently from other absentee voters. See 2 Leg. Hist. 1745 (Nanette Bowling) (“[S]ome jurisdictions

(continued...)

The denial of access to political officials and vital governmental services also featured prominently in the testimony. For example, “[t]he courthouse door is still closed to Americans with disabilities” – literally. 2 Leg. Hist. 936 (Sen. Harkin).

I went to the courtroom one day and * * * I could not get into the building because there were about 500 steps to get in there. Then I called for the security guard to help me, who * * * told me there was an entrance at the back door for the handicapped people. * * * I went to the back door and there were three more stairs for me to get over to be able to ring a bell to announce my arrival so that somebody would come and open the door and maybe let me in. I was not able to do that. * * * This is the court system that is supposed to give me a fair hearing. It took me 2 hours to get in. * * * And when [the judge] finally saw me in the courtroom, he could not look at me because of my wheelchair. * * * The employees of the courtroom came back to me and told me, “You are not the norm. You are not the normal person we see every day.”

Id. at 1071 (Emeka Nwojke).

Numerous other witnesses explained that access to the courts<sup>10</sup> and other merely encouraged persons with disabilities to vote by absentee ballot * * * [which] deprives the disabled voter of an option available to other absentee voters, the right to change their vote by appearing personally at the polls on election day.”); Equal Access to Voting Hearings 17, 461 (criticizing States’ imposition of special certification requirements on persons with disabilities for absentee voting); see generally FEC, Polling Place Accessibility in the 1988 General Election 7 (1989) (21% of polling places inaccessible; 27% were inaccessible in 1986 elections).

---

<sup>9</sup>(...continued)

<sup>10</sup> See, e.g., Ala. 15 (“A man, called to testify in court, had to get out of his wheelchair and physically pull himself up three flights of stairs to reach the courtroom.”); W. Va. 1745 (witness in court case had to be carried up two flights of stairs because the sheriff would not let him use the elevator).

important government buildings and officials<sup>11</sup> depended upon their willingness to

---

<sup>11</sup> See, e.g., H.R. Rep. No. 485, supra, Pt. 2, at 40 (town hall and public schools inaccessible); 2 Leg. Hist. 1331 (Justin Dart) (“We have clients whose children have been taken away from them and told to get parent information, but have no place to go because the services are not accessible. What chance do they ever have to get their children back?”); Spectrum 39 (76% of State-owned buildings offering services and programs for the general public are inaccessible and unusable for persons with disabilities); May 1989 Hearings 488, 491 (Ill. Att’y Gen. Hartigan) (“I have had innumerable complaints regarding lack of access to public services – people unable to meet with their elected representatives because their district office buildings were not accessible or unable to attend public meetings because they are held in an inaccessible building”; “individuals who are deaf or hearing impaired call[] our office for assistance because the arm of government they need to reach is not accessible to them”); id. at 76 (“[Y]ou cannot attend town council meetings on the second story of a building that does not have an elevator.”); id. at 663 (Dr. Mary Lynn Fletcher) (to attend town meetings, “I (or anyone with a severe mobility impairment) must crawl up three flights of circular stairs to the ‘Court Room.’ In this room all public business is conducted by the county government whether on taxes, zoning, schools or any type of public business.”); Ala. 17 (every day at her job, the Director of Alabama’s Disabled Persons Protection Commission “ha[d] to drive home to use the bathroom or call my husband to drive in and help me because the newly renovated State House” lacked accessible bathrooms); Alaska 73 (“We have major problems in Seward, regarding accessibility to City and State buildings for the handicapped.” City Manager responded that “[H]e runs this town * * * and no one is going to tell him what to do.”); Ind. 626 (“Raney, who has been in a wheelchair for 12 years, tried three times last year to testify before state legislative committees. And three times, he was thwarted by a narrow set of Statehouse stairs, the only route to the small hearing room.”); Ind. 651 (person with disabilities could not attend government meetings or court proceedings because entrances and locations were inaccessible); Wis. 1758 (lack of access to City Hall); Wyo. 1786 (individual unable to get a marriage license because the county courthouse was not wheelchair accessible); Calif. Att’y Gen., Commission on Disability: Final Report 70 (Dec. 1989) (“People with disabilities are often unable to gain access to public meetings of governmental and quasi-governmental agencies to exercise their legal right to crawl or be carried. And Congress was told that state officials themselves had “pointed to negative attitudes and misconceptions as potent impediments to [their own] barrier removal policies.” Advisory Comm’n on Intergovernmental Relations, Disability Rights Mandates: Federal and State Compliance with Employment Protections and Architectural Barrier Removal 87 (Apr. 1989).

(continued...)

The physical exclusion of people with disabilities from public buildings has special constitutional import when court proceedings are taking place inside. For criminal defendants, the Due Process Clause has been interpreted to provide that “an accused has a right to be present at all stages of the trial where his absence might frustrate the fairness of the proceedings.” Faretta v. California, 422 U.S. 806, 819 n.15 (1975). The Sixth Amendment “grants to the accused personally the right to make his defense. It is the accused, not counsel, who must be ‘informed of the nature and cause of the accusation,’ who must be ‘confronted with the witnesses against him,’ and who must be accorded ‘compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor.’” Id. at 819. Parties in civil litigation have an analogous Due Process right to be present in the courtroom unless their exclusion furthers important government interests. See, e.g., Helminski v. Ayerst Labs., 766 F.2d 208, 213 (6th Cir.), cert. denied, 474 U.S. 981 (1985).

(b) Education: “[E]ducation is perhaps the most important function of state and local governments” because “it is doubtful that any child may reasonably be comment on issues that impact their lives.”).

---

<sup>11</sup>(...continued)

expected to succeed in life if he is denied the opportunity of an education.” Brown v. Board of Educ., 347 U.S. 483, 493 (1954). Accordingly, where the State undertakes to provide a public education, that right “must be made available to all on equal terms.” Ibid. But Congress learned that irrational prejudices, fears, ignorance, and animus still operate to deny persons with disabilities an equal opportunity for public education. For example, California reported that in its school districts (which are covered by the Eleventh Amendment, see n.30, infra), “[a] bright child with cerebral palsy is assigned to a class with mentally retarded and other developmentally disabled children solely because of her physical disability” and that in one California town, all disabled children are grouped into a single classroom regardless of individual ability. Calif. Att’y Gen., Commission on Disability: Final Report 17, 81 (Dec. 1989) (Calif. Report). “When I was 5,” a witness testified to Congress, “my mother proudly pushed my wheelchair to our local public school, where I was promptly refused admission because the principal ruled that I was a fire hazard.” S. Rep. No. 116, supra, at 7.<sup>12</sup>

---

<sup>12</sup> See also 136 Cong. Rec. H2480 (daily ed. May 17, 1990) (Rep. McDermott) (school board excluded Ryan White, who had AIDS, not because the board “thought Ryan would infect others” but because “some parents were afraid he would”); 2 Leg. Hist. 989 (Mary Ella Linden) (“I was considered too crippled to compete by both the school and my parents. In fact, the [segregated] school never even took the time to teach me to write! * * * The effects of the school’s failure to teach me are still evident today.”); Alaska 38 (school district labeled child with cerebral palsy who subsequently obtained a Masters Degree as mentally retarded); Neb. 1031 (school district labeled as mentally retarded a blind child); Or. 1375

(continued...)

State institutions of higher education also demonstrated prejudices and stereotypical thinking. A person with epilepsy was asked to leave a state college because her seizures were “disrupt[ive]” and, officials said, created a risk of liability. 2 Leg. Hist. 1162 (Barbara Waters). A doctor with multiple sclerosis was denied admission to a psychiatric residency program because the state admissions committee “feared the negative reactions of patients to his disability.” Id. at 1617 (Arlene Mayerson). Another witness explained that, “when I was first injured, my college refused to readmit me” because “it would be ‘disgusting’ to my roommates to have to live with a woman with a disability.” Wash. 1733.<sup>13</sup>

---

<sup>12</sup>(...continued)

(child with cerebral palsy was “given cleaning jobs while other[] [non-disabled students] played sports”); Vt. 1635 (quadriplegic woman with cerebral palsy and a high intellect, who scored well in school, was branded “retarded” by educators, denied placement in a regular school setting, and placed with emotionally disturbed children, where she was told she was “not college material”); Spectrum 28, 29 (“a great many handicapped children” are “excluded from the public schools” or denied “recreational, athletic, and extracurricular activities provided for non-handicapped students”); see also Education for All Handicapped Children, 1973-1974: Hearings Before the Subcomm. on the Handicapped of the Senate Comm. on Labor and Pub. Welfare, 93d Cong., 1st Sess. 384 (1973) (Peter Hickey) (student in Vermont was forced to attend classes with students two years behind him because he could not climb staircase to attend classes with his peers); id. at 793 (Christine Griffith) (first-grade student “was spanked every day” because her deafness prevented her from following instructions); id. at 400 (Mrs. Richard Walbridge) (student with spina bifida barred from the school library for two years “because her braces and crutches made too much noise”).

<sup>13</sup> See also 2 Leg. Hist. 1224 (Denise Karuth) (state university professor asked a blind student enrolled in his music class “What are you doing in this program if

(continued...)

This evidence is consistent with the finding of the Commission on Civil Rights, also before Congress, that the “higher one goes on the education scale, the lower the proportion of handicapped people one finds.” Spectrum 28; see also National Council on the Handicapped, On the Threshold of Independence 14 (1988) (29% of disabled persons had attended college, compared to 48% of the non-disabled population). Although such a finding does not indicate what percentage of the population have conditions such as mental retardation that might affect skills required for higher education, “they nonetheless are evidence of a substantial disparity.” Spectrum 28. Such gross statistical disparities can be sufficient to show unconstitutional conduct. See Garrett, 121 S. Ct. at 967 (discussing with approval reliance on “50-percentage point gap” between white and black registration rates in finding discrimination by States in South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. 301 (1966)).

(c) Law Enforcement: Persons with disabilities have also been victimized you can’t see”; student was forced to drop class); id. at 1225 (state commission refuses to sponsor legally blind student for masters degree in rehabilitation counseling because “the State would not hire blind rehabilitation counselors, ‘[s]ince,’ and this is a quote: ‘they could not drive to see their clients’”); Wis. 1757 (a doctoral program would not accept a person with a disability because “it never worked out well”); S.D. 1476 (University of South Dakota dean and his successor were convinced that blind people could not teach in the public schools); Calif. Report 138; J. Shapiro, No Pity 45 (1994) (Dean of the University of California at Berkeley told a prospective student that “[w]e’ve tried cripples before and it didn’t work”).

---

<sup>13</sup>(...continued)

in their dealings with law enforcement. When police in Kentucky learned that a man they arrested had AIDS, “[i]nstead of putting the man in jail, the officers locked him inside his car to spend the night.” 2 Leg. Hist. 1005 (Belinda Mason). Police refused to accept a rape complaint from a blind woman because she could not make a visual identification, ignoring the possibility of alternative means of identifying the perpetrator. N.M. 1081. A person in a wheelchair was given a ticket and six-months probation for obstructing traffic on the street, even though the person could not use the sidewalk because it lacked curb cuts. Va. 1684. Task Force Chairman Justin Dart testified, moreover, that persons with hearing impairments “have been arrested and held in jail over night without ever knowing their rights nor what they are being held for.” 2 Leg. Hist. 1331.<sup>14</sup> The discrimination continues in correctional institutions. “I have witnessed their jailers rational[ize] taking away their wheelchairs as a form of punishment as if that is different than punishing prisoners by breaking their legs.” 2 Leg. Hist.

---

<sup>14</sup> See also 2 Leg. Hist. 1115 (Paul Zapun) (sheriff threatens persons with disabilities who stop in town due to car trouble); id. at 1196 (Cindy Miller) (police “do not provide crime prevention, apprehension or prosecution because they see it as fate that Americans with disabilities will be victims”); id. at 1197 (police officer taunted witness by putting a gun to her head and pulling the trigger on an empty barrel, “because he thought it would be ‘funny’ since I have quadraparesis and couldn’t flee or fight”); Tex. 1541 (police refused to take an assault complaint from a person with a disability); Calif. Report 101-104 (additional examples). In addition, persons with disabilities, such as epilepsy, are “frequently inappropriately arrested and jailed” and “deprived of medications while in jail.” H.R. Rep. No. 485, supra, Pt. 3, at 50; see also 136 Cong. Rec. H2633 (daily ed. May 22, 1990) (Rep. Levine); Wyo. 1777; Idaho 517.

1190 (Cindy Miller).<sup>15</sup> These problems implicate the entire array of constitutional protections for those in state custody for alleged or proven criminal behavior (including the Fourth Amendment right to be free from unreasonable seizures, the substantive due process rights of pre-trial detainees, the procedural due process and Sixth Amendment rights to fair and open criminal proceedings, and the Eighth Amendment right to be free from cruel and unusual punishment upon conviction).

(d) Institutionalization: Unconstitutional denials of appropriate treatment and unreasonable institutionalization of persons in state mental hospitals were also catalogued. See 2 Leg. Hist. 1203 (Lelia Batten) (state law ineffective; state hospitals are “notorious for using medication for controlling the behavior of clients and not for treatment alone. Seclusion rooms and restraints are used to punish clients.”); id. at 1262-1263 (Eleanor C. Blake) (detailing the “minimal, custodial, neglectful, abusive” care received at state mental hospital, and willful indifference resulting in rape); Spectrum 34-35.<sup>16</sup> Unnecessary institutionalization and mistreatment within state-run facilities may violate substantive due process. See Youngberg v. Romeo, 457 U.S. 307 (1982) (unconstitutional conditions of confinement); O'Connor v. Donaldson, 422 U.S. 563 (1975) (impermissible confinement); Thomas S. by Brooks v. Flaherty, 902 F.2d 250 (4th Cir.)

---

<sup>15</sup> See also Spectrum 168 (noting discrimination in treatment and rehabilitation programs available to inmates with disabilities and inaccessible jail cells and toilet facilities); Parrish v. Johnson, 800 F.2d 600, 603, 605 (6th Cir. 1986) (prison guard repeatedly assaulted paraplegic inmates with knife, forced them to sit in own feces, and taunted them with remarks like “crippled bastard” and “[you] should be dead”); Harrelson v. Elmore County, 859 F. Supp. 1465, 1466 (M.D. Ala. 1994) (paraplegic prisoner denied use of a wheelchair and forced to crawl around his cell); Calif. Report 103 (“[A] parole agent sent a man who uses a wheelchair back to prison since he did not show up for his appointments even though he explained that he could not make the appointments because he was unable to get accessible transportation.”).

---

<sup>16</sup> See also Calif. Report 114. Congress also brought to bear the knowledge it had acquired of this problem in enacting the Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act, Pub. L. No. 96-247, 94 Stat. 349, codified at 42 U.S.C. 1997 et seq., and the Developmental Disabilities Act of 1984, 42 U.S.C. 6000 et seq. See, e.g., 132 Cong. Rec. S5914-01 (daily ed. May 14, 1986) (Sen. Kerry) (findings of investigation of State-run mental health facilities “were appalling. The extent of neglect and abuse uncovered in their facilities was beyond belief.”); Civil Rights of Instit. Persons: Hearings on S. 1393 Before the Subcomm. on the Const. of the Sen. Comm. on the Judiciary, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. 127 (1977) (Michael D. McGuire, M.D.) (“it became quite clear * * * that the personnel regarded patients as animals, * * * and that group kicking and beatings were part of the program”); id. at 191-192 (Dr. Philip Roos) (characterizing institutions for persons with mental retardation throughout the nation as “dehumanizing,” “unsanitary and hazardous conditions,” “replete with conditions which foster regression and deterioration,” “characterized by self-containment and isolation, confinement, separation from the mainstream of society”); Civil Rights for Instit. Persons: Hearings on H.R. 2439 and H.R. 5791 Before the Subcomm. on Courts, Civil Liberties, and the Admin. of Justice, of the House Comm. on the Judiciary, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. 239 (1977) (Stanley C. Van Ness) (describing “pattern and practice of physical assaults and mental abuse of patients, and of unhealthy, unsanitary, and anti-therapeutic living conditions” in New Jersey state institutions); Civil Rights of Instit. Persons: Hearings on H.R. 10 Before the Subcomm. on Courts, Civil Liberties, and the Admin. of Justice of the House Comm. on the Judiciary, 96th Cong., 1st Sess. 34 (1979) (Paul Friedman) (“[A] number of the residents were literally kept in cages. A number of those residents who had been able to walk and who were continent when they were committed had lost the ability to walk, had become incontinent, and had regressed because of these shockingly inhumane conditions of confinement.”).

(confinement when appropriate community placement available), cert. denied, 498 U.S. 951 (1990); Clark v. Cohen, 794 F.2d 79 (3d Cir.) (same), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 962 (1986).

(e) Other Public Services: Congress heard evidence that irrational discrimination permeated the entire range of services offered by governments. Programs as varied as zoning<sup>17</sup>; the operation of zoos,<sup>18</sup> public libraries,<sup>19</sup> public swimming pools and park programs<sup>20</sup>; and child custody proceedings<sup>21</sup> exposed

---

<sup>17</sup> Congress knew that Cleburne was not an isolated incident. See 2 Leg. Hist. 1230 (Larry Urban); Wyo. 1781 (zoning board declined to authorize group home because of “local residents’ unfounded fears that the residents would be a danger to the children in a nearby school”); Nev. 1050 (Las Vegas has passed an ordinance that disallows the mentally ill from living in residential areas); N.J. 1068 (group home for those with head injuries barred because public perceived such persons as “totally incompetent, sexual deviants, and that they needed ‘room to roam’”; “Officially, the application was turned down due to lack of parking spaces, even though it was early established that the residents would not have automobiles.”).

<sup>18</sup> A zoo keeper refused to admit children with Down Syndrome “because he feared they would upset the chimpanzees.” S. Rep. No. 116, supra, at 7; H.R. Rep. No. 485, supra, Pt. 2, at 30.

<sup>19</sup> See 2 Leg. Hist. 1100 (Shelley Teed-Wargo) (town library refused to let person with mental retardation check out a video “because he lives in a group home,” unless he was accompanied by a staff person or had a written permission slip); Pa. 1391 (public library will not issue library cards to residents of group homes without the countersignature of a staff member – this rule applies to “those having physical as well as mental disabilities”).

<sup>20</sup> A paraplegic Vietnam veteran was forbidden to use a public pool in New York; the park commissioner explained that “[i]t’s not my fault you went to Vietnam and the discriminatory actions and attitudes of officials.<sup>22</sup>

(continued...)

---

<sup>20</sup>(...continued)

got crippled.” 3 Leg. Hist. 1872 (Peter Adesso); see also id. at 1995 (Rev. Scott Allen) (woman with AIDS and her children denied entry to a public swimming pool); May 1989 Hearings 76 (Ill. Att’y Gen. Hartigan) (visually impaired children with guide dogs “cannot participate in park district programs when the park has a ‘no dogs’ rule”).

<sup>21</sup> See H.R. Rep. No. 485, supra, Pt. 3, at 25 (“These discriminatory policies and practices affect people with disabilities in every aspect of their lives * * * [including] securing custody of their children.”); id., Pt. 2, at 41 (“[B]eing paralyzed has meant far more than being unable to walk – it has meant being excluded from public schools * * * and being deemed an ‘unfit parent’” in custody proceedings.); 2 Leg. Hist. 1611 n.10 (Arlene Mayerson) (“Historically, child-custody suits almost always have ended with custody being awarded to the non-disabled parent.”); Mass. 829 (government refuses to authorize couple’s adoption solely because woman had muscular dystrophy); Spectrum 40; No Pity, supra, at 26 (woman with cerebral palsy denied custody of her two sons; children placed in foster care instead); Carney v. Carney, 598 P.2d 36, 42 (Cal. 1979) (lower court “stereotype[d] William as a person deemed forever unable to be a good parent simply because he is physically handicapped”).

<sup>22</sup> See also H.R. Rep. No. 485, supra, Pt. 2, at 46 (“How many well educated and highly capable people with disabilities must sit down at home every day, not because of their lack of ability, but because of the attitudes of employers, service providers, and government officials?”); 2 Leg. Hist. 1061 (Eric Griffin) (“I come to you as one of those * * * who was denied a public education until age 18, one who has been put through the back door, and kept out of the front door and segregated even if you could get in.”); id. at 1078 (Ellen Telker) (“State and local municipalities do not make many materials available to a person who is unable to read print.”); id. at 1116 (Virginia Domini) (persons with disabilities “must fight to function in a society where busdrivers start moving before I have my balance or State human resources [sic] yell ‘I can’t understand you,’ to justify leaving a man without food or access to food over the weekend.”); id. at 1017 (Judith Heumann) (“Some of these people are in very high places. In fact, one of our categories of

(continued...)

B. The Actions Covered By Title II Implicate Both Equal Protection And Other Substantive Constitutional Rights

Garrett instructs that in assessing the validity of Congress’s Section 5 legislation, it is important to identify the constitutional rights at stake. See 121 S. Ct. at 963. Since there is no constitutional right to state employment, the Court looked to the Equal Protection Clause as the sole constitutional provision that Congress sought to enforce. Ibid. And because classifications based on disability are not subject to heightened scrutiny, the Court faulted Congress for failing to identify incidents when state action did not satisfy the “minimum ‘rational-basis’ review applicable to general social and economic legislation.” Ibid.

By contrast, Title II governs all the operations of a State, which plainly encompasses state conduct subject to a number of other constitutional limitations embodied in the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Amendments and incorporated and applied to the States through the Fourteenth Amendment. To the great opposition is local administrators, local elected officials.”); 3 Leg. Hist. 2241 (James Ellis) (“Because of their disability, people with mental retardation have been denied the right to marry, the right to have children, the right to vote, the right to attend public school, and the right to live in their own community, with their own families and friends.”); 2 Leg. Hist. 1768 (Rick Edwards) (“Why are the new drinking fountains in our State House erected out of reach of persons in wheelchairs? And why were curb cuts at the Indianapolis Airport filled in with concrete?”); Task Force Report 21 (six wheelchair users arrested for failing to leave restaurant after manager complained that “they took up too much space”); see generally Spectrum App. A (identifying 20 broad categories of state-provided or supported services and programs in which discrimination against persons with disabilities arises).

---

<sup>22</sup>(...continued)

extent that Title II enforces the Fourteenth Amendment by remedying and preventing government conduct that burdens these constitutional provisions and discriminates against persons with disabilities in their exercise of these rights, Congress did not need to identify irrational government action in order to identify and address unconstitutional government action. As mentioned earlier, those rights include the right to vote, to access the courts, to petition officials for redress of grievances, to due process by law enforcement officials, and to humane conditions of confinement.

Moreover, in evaluating generally-available public services that do not implicate fundamental rights, the same justifications that would be sufficient in an employment setting often will not suffice when the classification involves the exclusion from generally available government services. This is because when a government interacts with its citizens as employer, rather than sovereign, the core purpose of the Constitution in protecting its citizens qua citizens is not directly implicated. Thus, as the Supreme Court has explained in the First Amendment context, “[t]he government’s interest in achieving its goals as effectively and efficiently as possible is elevated from a relatively subordinate interest when it acts as sovereign to a significant one when it acts as employer.” Board of County Comm’rs v. Umbehr, 518 U.S. 668, 676 (1996); cf. O’Connor v. Ortega, 480 U.S. 709, 724 (1987) (holding that Fourth Amendment protects government employees, but declining to impose “probable cause” requirement on searches because of special needs of government as employer). Conversely, then, interests that are sufficient to justify government employment policies may not be sufficient when the government is acting in its sovereign capacity.

Therefore, the Court's statement in Garrett that the Equal Protection Clause does not require States to accommodate people with disabilities if it involves additional expenditures of funds, see 121 S. Ct. at 966, is best understood as limited to government actions in its capacity as an employer. That statement certainly would not permit States to deny persons with disabilities their right to vote on the ground that providing access to the polling place is costly. Even outside the arena of fundamental rights, the Supreme Court has made clear that a "State may not rely on a classification whose relationship to an asserted goal is so attenuated as to render the distinction arbitrary or irrational." Cleburne, 473 U.S. at 446. Under this standard, reducing costs or increasing administrative efficiency will not always suffice as justification outside the employment context. See, e.g., Plyler v. Doe, 457 U.S. 202, 229 (1982); Jimenez v. Weinberger, 417 U.S. 628, 636-637 (1974). Indeed, the Supreme Court has held that in order to comply with the Equal Protection Clause a State may be required to provide costly services free of charge where necessary to provide a class of persons meaningful access to important services offered to the public at-large. See M.L.B. v. S.L.J., 519 U.S. 102, 110, 127 n.16 (1996).

In addition, courts have found unconstitutional treatment of persons with disabilities in a wide variety of public services, including violations of the Equal Protection Clause, the Due Process Clause, and the Eighth Amendment, as incorporated into Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment.<sup>23</sup> These cases provide the “confirming judicial documentation,” Garrett, 121 S. Ct. at 968 (Kennedy, J., concurring), of unconstitutional disability discrimination by States that the Court found lacking in the employment context.

C. Title II Is Reasonably Tailored To Remediating And Preventing Unconstitutional Discrimination Against Persons With Disabilities

When enacting Section 5 legislation, Congress “must tailor its legislative scheme to remediating or preventing” the unconstitutional conduct it has identified.

---

<sup>23</sup> See, e.g., Youngberg v. Romeo, 457 U.S. 307 (1982) (unconstitutional conditions of confinement); O’Connor v. Donaldson, 422 U.S. 563, 567-575 (1975) (impermissible confinement); LaFaut v. Smith, 834 F.2d 389 (4th Cir. 1987) (Powell, J.) (failure to provide paraplegic inmate with an accessible toilet is cruel and unusual punishment); Garrity v. Gallen, 522 F. Supp. 171, 214 (D.N.H. 1981) (“blanket discrimination against the handicapped * * * is unfortunately firmly rooted in the history of our country”); Flakes v. Percy, 511 F. Supp. 1325 (W.D. Wis. 1981); New York State Ass’n for Retarded Children v. Carey, 466 F. Supp. 487 (E.D.N.Y. 1979); Lora v. Board of Educ., 456 F. Supp. 1211, 1275 (E.D.N.Y. 1978); Hairston v. Drosick, 423 F. Supp. 180 (S.D. W. Va. 1976); Frederick L. v. Thomas, 408 F. Supp. 832, 836 (E.D. Pa. 1976); Panitch v. Wisconsin, 444 F. Supp. 320 (E.D. Wis. 1977); Aden v. Younger, 129 Cal. Rptr. 535 (Ct. App. 1976); In re Downey, 340 N.Y.S. 2d 687 (Fam. Ct. 1973); Fialkowski v. Shapp, 405 F. Supp. 946, 958-959 (E.D. Pa. 1975); In re G.H., 218 N.W. 2d 441, 447 (N.D. 1974); Stoner v. Miller, 377 F. Supp. 177, 180 (E.D.N.Y. 1974); Vecchione v. Wohlgemuth, 377 F. Supp. 1361, 1368 (E.D. Pa. 1974), aff’d, 558 F.2d 150 (3rd Cir.), cert. denied, 434 U.S. 943 (1977); Welsch v. Likins, 373 F. Supp. 487 (D. Minn. 1974), aff’d in part, 550 F.2d 1122 (8th Cir. 1977); Mills v. Board of Educ., 348 F. Supp. 866 (D.D.C. 1972); Pennsylvania Ass’n for Retarded Children v. Pennsylvania, 334 F. Supp. 1257 (E.D. Pa. 1971); Wyatt v. Stickney, 325 F. Supp. 781 (M.D. Ala. 1971), aff’d in part, 503 F.2d 1305 (5th Cir. 1974).

Florida Prepaid Postsec. Educ. Expense Bd. v. College Sav. Bank, 527 U.S. 627, 639 (1999). Congress, however, may “paint with a much broader brush than may this Court, which must confine itself to the judicial function of deciding individual cases and controversies upon individual records.” Fullilove v. Klutznick, 448 U.S. 448, 501-502 n.3 (1980) (Powell, J., concurring). Accordingly, in exercising its power, “Congress is not limited to mere legislative repetition of [the] Court’s constitutional jurisprudence.” Garrett, 121 S. Ct. at 963. Rather, “[I]n legislation which deters or remedies constitutional violations can fall within the sweep of Congress’ enforcement power even if in the process it prohibits conduct which is not itself unconstitutional.” Lopez v. Monterey County, 525 U.S. 266, 282-283 (1999). The operative question thus is not whether Title II “prohibit[s] a somewhat broader swath of conduct,” Garrett, 121 S. Ct. at 963, than would the courts, but whether in response to the historic and enduring legacy of discrimination, segregation, and isolation faced by persons with disabilities at the hands of States, Title II was “designed to guarantee meaningful enforcement” of their constitutional rights, id. at 967.

Title II fits this description. Title II targets discrimination that is unreasonable. The States retain their discretion to exclude persons from programs, services, or benefits for any lawful reason unconnected with their disability or for no reason at all.<sup>24</sup> Title II also permits exclusion if a person cannot “meet[] the essential eligibility requirements” of the governmental program or service. 42 U.S.C. 12131(2). But once an individual proves that she can meet all but the non-essential eligibility requirements of a program or service, the government’s interest in excluding that individual “by reason of such disability,” 42 U.S.C. 12132, is both minimal and, in light of history, constitutionally problematic. At the same time, permitting the States to retain and enforce their essential eligibility requirements protects their legitimate interests in selecting and structuring governmental activities. Title II thus carefully balances a State’s legitimate operational interests against the right of a person with a disability to be judged “by his or her own merit and essential qualities.” Rice v. Cayetano, 528 U.S. 495, 517 (2000).

---

<sup>24</sup> The types of disabilities covered by the Act, moreover, are generally confined
(continued...)

Title II thus requires more than the Constitution only to the extent that some disability discrimination may be rational for constitutional purposes, but unreasonable under the statute. That margin of statutory protection does not redefine the constitutional right at issue. Instead, the statutory protection is necessary to enforce the courts’ constitutional standard by reaching unconstitutional conduct that would otherwise escape detection in court, remedying the continuing effects of prior unconstitutional discrimination, and to those substantially limiting conditions that have given rise to discriminatory treatment in the past. See Sutton v. United Air Lines, Inc., 527 U.S. 471 (1999); Murphy v. United Parcel Serv., 527 U.S. 516 (1999); Albertsons, Inc. v. Kirkingburg, 527 U.S. 555 (1999).

---

<sup>24</sup>(...continued)

detering future constitutional violations. “While the line between measures that remedy or prevent unconstitutional actions and measures that make a substantive change in the governing law is not easy to discern,” City of Boerne v. Flores, 521 U.S. 507, 519 (1997), Title II is on the remedial and prophylactic side of that line.

Title II requires “reasonable modifications” in public services. 42 U.S.C. 12131(2). That requirement, however, is carefully tailored to the unique features of disability discrimination that Congress found persisted in public services in two ways. First, given the history of segregation and isolation and the resulting entrenched stereotypes, fear, prejudices, and ignorance about persons with disabilities, Congress reasonably determined that a simple ban on discrimination would be insufficient to erase the stain of discrimination. Cf. Green v. County Sch. Bd., 391 U.S. 430, 437-438 (1968) (after unconstitutional segregation, government is “charged with the affirmative duty to take whatever steps might be necessary” to eliminate discrimination “root and branch”). Therefore, Title II affirmatively promotes the integration of individuals with disabilities – both in order to remedy past unconstitutional conduct and to prevent future discrimination. Congress could reasonably conclude that the demonstrated failure of state governments to undertake reasonable efforts to accommodate and integrate persons with disabilities within their programs, services, and operations, would freeze in place the effects of their prior exclusion and isolation of individuals with disabilities, creating a self-perpetuating spiral of segregation, stigma, ill treatment, neglect, and degradation. Congress also correctly concluded that, by reducing stereotypes and misconceptions, integration reduces the likelihood that constitutional violations will recur. Cf. Olmstead, 527 U.S. at 600 (segregation “perpetuates unwarranted assumptions that persons so isolated are incapable or unworthy of participating in community life”).

Second, to the extent that the accommodation requirement necessitates alterations in some governmental policies and practices, it is an appropriate enforcement mechanism for many of the same reasons that a prohibition on disparate impact is.<sup>25</sup> Like practices with a disparate impact and literacy tests for voting,<sup>26</sup> governmental refusals to make even reasonable accommodations for <sup>25</sup> Legislation prohibiting or requiring modifications of rules, policies, and practices that have a discriminatory impact is a traditional and appropriate exercise of the Section 5 power to combat a history of invidious discrimination. See Fullilove, 448 U.S. at 477 (opinion of Burger, C.J.) (“[C]ongressional authority [under Section 5] extends beyond the prohibition of purposeful discrimination to encompass state action that has discriminatory impact perpetuating the effects of past discrimination.”); id. at 502 (Powell, J., concurring) (“It is beyond question * * * that Congress has the authority to identify unlawful discriminatory practices, to prohibit those practices, and to prescribe remedies to eradicate their continuing effects.”); City of Rome v. United States, 446 U.S. 156, 176-177 (1980) (under its Civil War Amendment powers, Congress may prohibit conduct that is constitutional if it perpetuates the effects of past discrimination); South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. at 325-333; see also Washington v. Davis, 426 U.S. 229, 242 (1976) (“an invidious discriminatory purpose may often be inferred from * * * the fact, if it is true, that the law bears more heavily on one race than another”).

---

<sup>26</sup> See Oregon v. Mitchell, 400 U.S. 112 (1970) (upholding nationwide ban on literacy tests even though they are not unconstitutional per se); Gaston County v. United States, 395 U.S. 285, 293, 296-297 (1969) (Congress can proscribe constitutional action, such as literacy tests, to combat ripple effects of earlier persons with disabilities often perpetuate the consequences of prior unconstitutional discrimination, and thus fall within Congress's Section 5 power.<sup>27</sup>

Moreover, failure to accommodate the needs of qualified persons with disabilities may often result directly from hidden unconstitutional animus and false stereotypes. Title II simply makes certain that the refusal to accommodate an individual with a disability is genuinely based on unreasonable cost or actual inability to accommodate, rather than on nothing but the discomfort with the disability or unfounded concern about the costs of accommodation. Such a prophylactic response is commensurate with the problem of irrational state discrimination that denies access to benefits and services for which the State has otherwise determined individuals with disabilities to be qualified or which the State provides to all its citizens (such as education, police protection, and civil courts). It makes particular sense in the context of public services, where a post hoc judicial remedy may be of limited utility to an individual given the difficulty in remedying unconstitutional denials of intangible but important rights, such as the right to vote, to a fair trial, or to educational opportunity. By establishing discrimination in other governmental activities); South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. at 333-334.

---

<sup>26</sup>(...continued)

<sup>27</sup> Of course, the obligation to accommodate is less intrusive than the traditional disparate impact remedy because the government is not required to abandon the practice in toto, but may simply modify it to accommodate those otherwise qualified individuals with disabilities who are excluded by the practice's effect.

prophylactic requirements, Congress provided additional mechanisms for individuals to avoid irreparable injuries and to ensure that constitutional rights were fully vindicated.

Further, Congress tailored the modification requirement to the unconstitutional governmental conduct it seeks to repair and prevent. The statute requires modifications only where “reasonable.” 42 U.S.C. 12131(2). Governments need not make modifications that require “fundamental alterations in the nature of a service, program, or activity,” in light of their nature or cost, agency resources, and the operational practices and structure of the position. 28 C.F.R. 35.130(b)(7), 35.150(a)(3), 35.164; Olmstead, 527 U.S. at 606 n.16. And Congress determined, based on the consistent testimony of witnesses and expert studies, that contrary to the misconceptions of many, the vast majority of accommodations entail little or no cost.<sup>28</sup> And any costs are further diminished when measured against the financial and human costs of denying persons with disabilities an education or excluding them from needed government services or the equal exercise of fundamental rights, thereby rendering them a permanent underclass. See Plyler, 457 U.S. at 223-224, 227.

---

<sup>28</sup> See S. Rep. No. 116, supra, at 10-12, 89, 92; H.R. Rep. No. 485, supra, Pt. 2, at 34; 2 Leg. Hist. 1552 (EEOC Comm’r Evan Kemp); id. at 1077 (John Nelson); id. at 1388-1389 (Justin Dart); id. at 1456-1457; id. at 1560 (Jay Rochlin); 3 Leg. Hist. 2190-2191 (Robert Burgdorf); Task Force Report 27; Spectrum 2, 30, 70. The federal government, moreover, provides substantial funding to cover many of those costs.

In short, “[a] proper remedy for an unconstitutional exclusion * * * aims to eliminate so far as possible the discriminatory effects of the past and to bar like discrimination in the future.” United States v. Virginia, 518 U.S. 515, 547 (1996). Section 5 thus empowers Congress to do more than simply prohibit the creation of new barriers to equality; it can require States to tear down the walls they erected during decades of discrimination and exclusion. See id. at 550 n.19 (Equal Protection Clause itself can require modification of facilities and programs to ensure equal access). The remedy for segregation is integration, not inertia.

Defendant Mercer Vicinage contends (Br. 22; Supp. Br. 23-26) that, as in Garrett, Title II imposes on States a burden of justifying disability discrimination under the statute that is greater than what a court would require under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment. But an elevated burden of justification is not necessarily an impermissible effort to redefine constitutional rights; it can be, as it is here and under Title VII, an appropriate means of rooting out hidden animus and remedying and preventing pervasive discrimination that is unconstitutional under judicially defined standards.

D. In Light Of The Legislative Record And Findings And The Tailored Statutory Scheme, Title II And Its Abrogation Are Appropriate Section 5 Legislation

The record Congress compiled and the findings it made suffice to support Title II’s substantive standard as appropriate Fourteenth Amendment legislation applicable to States and localities.<sup>29</sup> As such, it is one in a line of civil rights statutes, authorized by Civil War Amendments, that apply to States and local governments. See, e.g., Titles III, IV, VI and VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. 2000b-2000e et seq.; Voting Rights Act of 1965, 42 U.S.C. 1973 et seq.; Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C. 1681 et seq.; Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act, 42 U.S.C. 1997 et seq.

Aside from the substantive provisions of Title II, Garrett held that to sustain an abrogation of Eleventh Amendment immunity as appropriate Section 5 legislation, only constitutional misconduct committed by those who are “beneficiaries” of the Eleventh Amendment can be relied upon. 121 S. Ct. at 965. The line between those government entities entitled to Eleventh Amendment immunity and those which are not is not always easy to identify. For example, while school districts are generally found not to be “arms of the state” protected by the Eleventh Amendment, see Mt. Healthy City Sch. Dist. Bd. v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 274, 280–281 (1977), there are some significant exceptions to this rule.<sup>30</sup> Similar <sup>29</sup> The Interstate Commerce Clause is also the basis for these substantive obligations. See Walker v. Snyder, 213 F.3d 344, 346 (7th Cir. 2000), cert. denied sub nom. United States v. Snyder, 121 S. Ct. 1188 (2001). Under either basis, suits against state officials for prospective relief (relief not at issue in this case) can proceed regardless of the validity of the abrogation. See Garrett, 121 S. Ct. at 968 n.9; Balgowan v. New Jersey, 115 F.3d 214, 217 (3d Cir. 1997).

---

<sup>30</sup> See Belanger v. Madera Unified Sch. Dist., 963 F.2d 248 (9th Cir. 1992), cert. denied, 507 U.S. 919 (1993) (California school districts protected by Eleventh Amendment); Rosenfeld v. Montgomery County Pub. Schs., 41 F. Supp. 2d 581

state-by-state inquiries are required in the law enforcement arena. See McMillian v. Monroe County, 520 U.S. 781, 795 (1997) (holding that county sheriff in Alabama is a state official and noting “there is no inconsistency created by court decisions that declare sheriffs to be county officers in one State, and not in another”). In other situations, such as voting, local officials are simply administering state policies and programs. While nominally the action of a local government, the discrimination individuals with disabilities endure is directly attributable to the State. Cf. Railroad Co. v. County of Otoe, 83 U.S. 667, 676 (1872) (“Counties, cities, and towns exist only for the convenient administration of the government. Such organizations are instruments of the State, created to carry out its will. When they are authorized or directed to levy a tax, or to appropriate its proceeds, the State through them is doing indirectly what it might do directly.”). Thus, as Garrett makes clear, actions of such local officials can be attributed to the States for purposes of the “congruence and proportionality” inquiry. See 121 S. Ct. at 967 (attributing to “States” and “State officials” conduct regarding voting that was done by county “registrar[s]” and “voting officials” in

---

<sup>30</sup>(...continued)

(D. Md. 1999) (Maryland school districts protected by Eleventh Amendment). The law in other States remains in flux. Cf. Martinez v. Board of Educ. of Taos Mun. Sch. Dist., 748 F.2d 1393 (10th Cir. 1984) (New Mexico school districts protected by Eleventh Amendment), overruled, Duke v. Grady Mun. Schs., 127 F.3d 972 (10th Cir. 1997); Harris v. Tooele County Sch. Dist., 471 F.2d 218 (10th Cir. 1973) (Utah school districts protected by Eleventh Amendment), overruled, Ambus v. Granite Bd. of Educ., 995 F.3d 992 (10th Cir. 1992) (en banc).

South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. at 312).

Given the fact that some school districts and law enforcement officials are “beneficiaries of the Eleventh Amendment,” Garrett, 121 S. Ct. at 965, and that some local practices are done at the States’ behest, the evidence before Congress regarding the treatment of people with disabilities by education, law enforcement, voting and other officials is relevant in assessing Congress’s legislative record about State violations. Because the demarcation is unclear at the margins, we have in this brief provided the evidence before Congress concerning both state and local governments. But even limited to the evidence concerning States acting through their own agencies, there was a sufficient basis to sustain Congress’s determination that States engaged in a pattern of unconstitutional conduct.

We acknowledge that the Tenth Circuit in Thompson v. Colorado, 258 F.3d 1241 (2001), reached the contrary conclusion. After surveying the record before Congress, Thompson concluded that there was “some evidence in the congressional record that unconstitutional discrimination against the disabled exists in government ‘services, programs, or activities.’” Id. at 1254. The panel found even a larger number of incidents involved “refusals by public entities to make accommodations,” ibid., which would be unconstitutional if invidiously motivated and, the court determined, could also sometimes rise to the level of constitutional violations regardless of intent. Nonetheless, the panel determined that it could not sustain Title II as valid Fourteenth Amendment legislation because “[w]ithout numerous documented occurrences of unconstitutional state discrimination against the disabled, Title II's accommodation requirement appears to be an attempt to prescribe a new federal standard for the treatment of the disabled rather than an attempt to combat unconstitutional discrimination." Id. at 1255.

Thompson was based on the legal misapprehension that the burden was on the United States to prove that the statute was constitutional and that Congress was obligated to compile a detailed record to support its findings. To the contrary, it is well-established that Congressional legislation is entitled to a strong presumption of constitutionality. See United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598, 607 (2000); Reno v. Condon, 528 U.S. 141, 147 (2000); Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. United States, 99 U.S. (9 Otto) 700, 718 (1878) ("Every possible presumption is in favor of the validity of a statute, and this continues until the contrary is shown beyond a rational doubt."). Thus, a court should declare a statute beyond Congress's authority "only upon a plain showing that Congress has exceeded its constitutional bounds." Morrison, 529 U.S. at 607 (emphasis added). This is particularly true when the constitutional question is predicated on empirical questions regarding the existence and scope of a problem. See Board of Educ. v. Mergens, 496 U.S. 226, 251 (1990) ("we do not lightly second-guess such legislative judgments, particularly where the judgments are based in part on empirical determinations"). "We owe Congress' findings deference in part because the institution is far better equipped than the judiciary to amass and evaluate the vast amounts of data bearing upon legislative questions." Turner

Broad. Sys., Inc. v. FCC, 520 U.S. 180, 195 (1997) (Turner II) (collecting cases) (internal quotation marks omitted).

Of course, when heightened scrutiny is involved, a legislature may be required to point to some factual predicate indicating that its determination that there is a problem meriting infringement on constitutional rights is reasonable. But even then a legislature need not show that it reached the correct conclusion, see Turner II, 520 U.S. at 211, and may rely on facts outside the “record” in making its determination, see id. at 212-213 (relying on post-enactment evidence); cf. Erie v. Pap’s A.M., 529 U.S. 277, 297-298 (2000) (“The city council members, familiar with commercial downtown Erie, are the individuals who would likely have had firsthand knowledge of what took place * * * and can make particularized, expert judgments about the resulting harmful secondary effects [of the expressive conduct]. Analogizing to the administrative agency context, it is well established that, as long as a party has an opportunity to respond, an administrative agency may take official notice of such ‘legislative facts’ within its special knowledge, and is not confined to the evidence in the record in reaching its expert judgment.”).

Indeed, when the Supreme Court has reviewed legislation under a heightened scrutiny standard and required some evidence to sustain legislation, it has permitted a statute to be upheld on the basis of less persuasive and voluminous evidence than was before Congress. In Nixon v. Shrink Missouri Government PAC, 528 U.S. 377 (2000), for example, the Court held that it was not even “a close call” that the State had sustained its burden of showing that “sometimes large contributions will work actual corruption of our political system,” thus justifying infringement on First Amendment rights, by pointing to an affidavit by a state legislator, two newspaper articles, and four incidents discussed in another judicial opinion. Id. at 393, 395. In Burson v. Freeman, 504 U.S. 191 (1992), likewise, the Court held that a statute prohibiting campaigning near polling places survived strict scrutiny analysis based on history, consensus, and “simple common sense.” Id. at 211; see also Florida Bar v. Went for It, Inc., 515 U.S. 618, 628 (1995) (upholding regulation of commercial speech based on a single study and noting that “we do not read our case law to require that empirical data come to us accompanied by a surfeit of background information”). Thus, Thompson held Congress to an improper standard of proof.

In assessing Congress’s exercise of its power to enforce the Fourteenth Amendment, the Supreme Court has reiterated that the volume of evidence in the record is “not determinative.” Kimel v. Florida Bd. of Regents, 528 U.S. 62, 91 (2000); Florida Prepaid, 527 U.S. at 646; see also Boerne, 521 U.S. at 531 (“Judicial deference, in most cases, is based not on the state of the legislative record Congress compiles but ‘on due regard for the decision of the body constitutionally appointed to decide.’”). It is true that the Supreme Court in Garrett looked to the underlying legislative record in an effort to determine whether there was a basis for upholding the legislation as an appropriate prophylactic remedy. But in that case the Court found (contrary to the situation here) that Congress had made no relevant findings regarding States and further determined (again, contrary to the situation here) that the only relevant evidence in the legislative record, involving six examples of unconstitutional conduct, was equivalent to no record at all.

But here there are findings reflecting Congress's determination that States engaged in forms of discrimination that can rise to the level of unconstitutional conduct: "outright intentional exclusion, * * * failure to make modifications to existing facilities and practices, exclusionary qualification standards and criteria, segregation, and relegation to lesser services." 42 U.S.C. 12101(a)(5). Given the deference to Congress's preeminent fact-finding role, the evidence in the "record" mandates a judicial holding that Congress could have reasonably reached the conclusion (expressed in statutory findings) that States were unconstitutionally discriminating against persons with disabilities. While the record may not have been as extensive as the court in Thompson would have liked, it was constitutionally sufficient.

Congress's finding, in turn, is sufficient to support the statute as valid Fourteenth Amendment legislation. But see Garcia v. SUNY Health Sciences Center, No. 00-9223, 2001 WL 1159970, at *6-*7 (2d Cir. Sept. 26, 2001) (holding, without discussing the constitutional violations or findings, that Title II's reasonable modification requirement was not valid Section 5 legislation). Once Congress's determination regarding the existence of constitutional violations has been confirmed, the scope of the remedy is purely a matter of legislative choice.

Cf. M'Culloch v. Maryland, 17 U.S. 316, 423 (1819) (“But where the law is not prohibited, and is really calculated to effect any of the objects intrusted to the government, to undertake here to inquire into the decree of its necessity, would be to pass the line which circumscribes the judicial department, and to tread on legislative ground.”). There is no requirement that the solution Congress adopts be the least-restrictive legislation to remedy and prevent the unconstitutional state conduct it has identified. Instead, as the Supreme Court explained in City of Boerne v. Flores, 521 U.S. at 536, and reiterated in Kimel, 528 U.S. at 80-81: “It is for Congress in the first instance to ‘determin[e] whether and what legislation is needed to secure the guarantees of the Fourteenth Amendment,’ and its conclusions are entitled to much deference.”

It is true that Title II’s broad coverage contrasts with that of Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which the Court noted approvingly in Garrett, 121 S. Ct. at 967. The operative question, however, is not whether Title II is broad, but whether it is broader than necessary. It is not. The history of unconstitutional treatment and the risk of future discrimination found by Congress pertained to all aspects of governmental operations. Only a comprehensive effort to integrate persons with disabilities would end the cycle of isolation, segregation, and second-class citizenship, and deter further discrimination. Integration in education alone, for example, would not suffice if persons with disabilities were relegated to institutions or trapped in their homes by lack of transportation or inaccessible sidewalks. Ending unnecessary institutionalization is of little gain if neither government services nor the social activities of public life (libraries, museums, parks, and recreation services) are accessible to bring persons with disabilities into the life of the community. And none of those efforts would suffice if persons with disabilities continued to lack equivalent access to government officials, courthouses, and polling places. In short, Congress chose a comprehensive remedy because it confronted an all-encompassing, inter-connected problem; to do less would be as ineffectual as “throwing an 11-foot rope to a drowning man 20 feet offshore and then proclaiming you are going more than halfway,” S. Rep. No. 116, supra, at 13. “Difficult and intractable problems often require powerful remedies * * * .” Kimel, 528 U.S. at 88. It is in such cases that Congress is empowered by Section 5 to enact “reasonably prophylactic legislation.” Ibid. Title II is just such a powerful remedy for a problem which Congress found to be intractable.

II

42 U.S.C. 2000d-7 VALIDLY REMOVES ELEVENTH AMENDMENT IMMUNITY FOR PRIVATE CLAIMS UNDER SECTION 504 OF THE REHABILITATION ACT OF 1973

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C. 794(a), prohibits discrimination against persons with disabilities under “any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.” Section 2000d-7 of Title 42 provides that a “State shall not be immune under the Eleventh Amendment of the Constitution of the United States from suit in Federal court for a violation of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 [29 U.S.C. 794], title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 * * * [and] title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.”

As defendant Mercer Vicinage concedes (Br. 23), because of the close identity between the substantive obligations of Title II and Section 504, whether Section 2000d-7 is valid Section 5 legislation for Section 504 claims is governed by this Court’s determination regarding Title II’s abrogation. See Kilcullen v. New York State Dep’t of Labor, 205 F.3d 77, 79-80 (2d Cir. 2000); Clark v. California, 123 F.3d 1267, 1271 (9th Cir. 1997), cert. denied, 524 U.S. 937 (1998). But even if this Court holds that Section 2000d-7 is not valid Section 5 legislation, Section 2000d-7 may be upheld as a valid exercise of Congress’s power under the Spending Clause, Art. I, § 8, Cl. 1, to prescribe conditions for state agencies that voluntarily accept federal financial assistance. For States are free to waive their Eleventh Amendment immunity. See College Sav. Bank v. Florida Prepaid Postsec. Educ. Expense Bd., 527 U.S. 666, 674 (1999). And “Congress may, in the exercise of its spending power, condition its grant of funds to the States upon their taking certain actions that Congress could not require them to take, and * * * acceptance of the funds entails an agreement to the actions.” Id. at 686. Thus, Congress may, and has, conditioned the receipt of federal funds on defendant’s waiver of Eleventh Amendment immunity to Section 504 claims.

A. Section 2000d-7 Is A Clear Statement That Accepting Federal Financial Assistance Would Constitute A Waiver To Private Suits Brought Under Section 504

Section 2000d-7 was enacted in response to the Supreme Court’s decision in Atascadero State Hospital v. Scanlon, 473 U.S. 234 (1985). In Atascadero, the Court held that Congress had not provided sufficiently clear statutory language to remove States' Eleventh Amendment immunity for Section 504 claims and reaffirmed that "mere receipt of federal funds" was insufficient to constitute a waiver. 473 U.S. at 246. But the Court stated that if a statute "manifest[ed] a clear intent to condition participation in the programs funded under the Act on a State's consent to waive its constitutional immunity," the federal courts would have jurisdiction over States that accepted federal funds. Id. at 247.

Section 2000d-7 makes unambiguously clear that Congress intended state agencies to be amenable to suit in federal court under Section 504 (and the other federal non-discrimination statutes tied to federal financial assistance) if they accepted federal funds.<sup>31</sup> Any state agency reading the U.S. Code would have known that after the effective date of Section 2000d-7 it could be sued in federal court for violations of Section 504 if it accepted federal funds.<sup>32</sup> Section 2000d-7

---

<sup>31</sup> Congress recognized that the holding of Atascadero had implications for not only Section 504, but also Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, which prohibit race and sex discrimination in "program[s] or activit[ies] receiving Federal financial assistance." See S. Rep. No. 388, 99th Cong., 2d Sess. 28 (1986); 131 Cong. Rec. 22,346 (1985) (Sen. Cranston).

<sup>32</sup> Defendant Mercer Vicinage states (Supp. Br. 30 n.*) that nothing "in the record" indicates that it accepted federal funds. This is presumably because defendant Mercer Vicinage admitted in the district court that it was a recipient of federal financial assistance, thus negating the need to develop a record on this point. See R. 21: Br. of Mercer Vicinage in Support of Motion for Summary Judgment, at 12 (Aug. 27, 1996) ("In this case, defendants do not dispute * * *

(continued...)

thus embodies exactly the type of unambiguous condition discussed by the Court in Atascadero, putting States on express notice that part of the “contract” for receiving federal funds was the requirement that they consent to suit in federal court for alleged violations of Section 504 for those agencies that received any financial assistance.<sup>33</sup>

The text and structure of the statutes make clear that federal financial assistance is conditioned on both the nondiscrimination obligation and removal of Eleventh Amendment immunity. Thus, the Supreme Court, in Lane v. Peña, 518 U.S. 187, 200 (1996), acknowledged “the care with which Congress responded to our decision in Atascadero by crafting an unambiguous waiver of the States’ that the relevant activity was receiving federal financial assistance.”). Compare Appellant’s App. 34 n.4 (noting that defendant McManimon argued in the district court that the Mercer County Detention Center did not receive federal financial assistance and thus was not subject to Section 504).

---

<sup>32</sup>(...continued)

<sup>33</sup> Contrary to defendant Mercer Vicinage’s suggestion (Supp. Br. 30 n.*), there is no need for a plaintiff to show that a defendant “entered into a contractual relationship with the federal government” in addition to showing defendant’s acceptance of the federal financial assistance. As the Supreme Court explained in United States Department of Transportation v. Paralyzed Veterans of America, 477 U.S. 597, 605 (1986), “[u]nder * * * Title VI, Title IX, and § 504, Congress enters into an arrangement in the nature of a contract with the recipients of the funds: the recipient’s acceptance of the funds triggers coverage under the nondiscrimination provision.” See also College Sav. Bank, 527 U.S. at 686 (“acceptance of the funds entails an agreement to the actions”).

Eleventh Amendment immunity” in Section 2000d-7.<sup>34</sup> The Fourth Circuit, after an extensive analysis of the text and structure of the Act, held in Litman v. George Mason University, 186 F.3d 544, 554 (1999), cert. denied, 528 U.S. 1181 (2000), that “Congress succeeded in its effort to codify a clear, unambiguous, and unequivocal condition of waiver of Eleventh Amendment immunity in 42 U.S.C. § 2000d-7(a)(1).” Six other courts of appeals agree that the Section 2000d-7 language clearly manifests an intent to condition receipt of federal financial assistance on waiver of Eleventh Amendment immunity. See Nihiser v. Ohio E.P.A., No. 97-3933, 2001 WL 1220723 (6th Cir. Oct. 11, 2001) (Section 504); Jim C. v. Arkansas Dep’t of Educ., 235 F.3d 1079, 1081-1082 (8th Cir. 2000) (en banc) (Section 504), cert. denied, 121 S. Ct. 2591 (2001); Stanley v. Litscher, 213 F.3d 340, 344 (7th Cir. 2000) (Section 504); Pederson v. Louisiana State Univ., 213 F.3d 858, 875-876 (5th Cir. 2000) (Title IX); Sandoval v. Hagan, 197 F.3d 484, 493-494 (11th Cir. 1999) (Title VI), rev’d on other grounds, 121 S. Ct. 1511 (2001); Clark v. California, 123 F.3d 1267, 1271 (9th Cir. 1997) (Section 504),

---

<sup>34</sup> The Department of Justice explained to Congress while the legislation was under consideration, “[t]o the extent that the proposed amendment is grounded on congressional spending powers, [it] makes it clear to [S]tates that their receipt of Federal funds constitutes a waiver of their [E]leventh [A]mendment immunity.” 132 Cong. Rec. 28,624 (1986). On signing the bill into law, President Reagan similarly explained that the Act “subjects States, as a condition of their receipt of Federal financial assistance, to suits for violation of Federal laws prohibiting discrimination on the basis of handicap, race, age, or sex to the same extent as any other public or private entities.” 22 Weekly Comp. Pres. Doc. 1421 (Oct. 27, 1986), reprinted in 1986 U.S.C.C.A.N. 3554.

cert. denied, 524 U.S. 937 (1998).

The Second Circuit in Garcia v. SUNY Health Sciences Center, No. 00-9223, 2001 WL 1159970, at *10 (Sept. 26, 2001), agreed that Section 2000d-7 “constitutes a clear expression of Congress's intent to condition acceptance of federal funds on a state’s waiver of its Eleventh Amendment immunity.”

However, the panel held that the waiver was not effective because the state agency did not “know” in 1995 (the latest point the alleged discrimination had occurred) that the abrogation in Title II of the ADA was not effective and thus would have “believed” (wrongly, in the view of the Second Circuit) that Title II’s abrogation for Title II claims made the waiver for Section 504 redundant. Id. at *11. First, defendant Mercer Vicinage never raised this argument in the district court, and thus may not raise it on appeal.

Moreover, the panel’s reasoning is incorrect. The panel recognized that Congress could condition the receipt of funds on a waiver of immunity, so long as the waiver was “knowing,” but it misconstrued what that term means in the context of a Spending Clause statute. The whole point of the Court’s requirement in Atascadero that Congress make a clear statement in the statutory text when it wishes to remove States’ Eleventh Amendment immunity is so that when a State takes an action that falls within the scope of the statute (here, the decision to take federal money), there can be no question that it made the decision with knowledge from the statute itself that it would be subjected to private suits. The clarity required by Atascadero and provided by Section 2000d-7 exists to ensure, as a matter of law, that recipients “exercise their choice knowingly, cognizant of the consequence of their participation.” Pennhurst State Sch. & Hosp. v. Halderman, 451 U.S. 1, 17 (1981). A State could not have thought that it was not waiving immunity to suit under Section 504. The language of Section 2000d-7 is absolute. Congress did not repeal Section 504 or Section 2000d-7 when it enacted the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. Although Title II must be interpreted to be at least as protective as Section 504, see 42 U.S.C. 12201(a), Congress did not abolish the Section 504 cause of action. To the contrary, Congress preserved it. See 42 U.S.C. 12201(b). Thus, whatever functional equivalence the two causes of action have, they remain formally distinct causes of action and require separate provisions removing immunity. Cf. Pennhurst State Sch. & Hosp. v. Halderman, 465 U.S. 89, 103 n.12 (1984) (Eleventh Amendment immunity must be assessed claim by claim). Knowing this, a state agency that accepts federal funds in exchange for a waiver of immunity cannot later avoid suit by saying that it made a bad choice. At the very least, a state agency would be required to return the funding if it wished to repudiate the agreement based on its mistaken understanding of its obligations.

The panel’s theory produces anomalous results. A state agency that accepted funds after Congress enacted Section 2000d-7 in 1986 did waive its immunity to suit. This waiver was effective at least until 1990 – when Title II was enacted – and possibly until 1992 – when Title II became effective. But at that time, according to the panel, although Section 504 and Section 2000d-7 remained the same, the State's knowing waiver became unknowing. Indeed, the panel would have a State's Section 504 waiver depend upon the current state of the case law adjudicating the abrogation provision of the ADA.

In any event, the panel was incorrect in holding that a party who may have relied on the current state of the law in making a choice to waive constitutional rights cannot be said to have made an effective waiver simply because of subsequent changes of law. See Brady v. United States, 397 U.S. 742, 757 (1970) (“a voluntary plea of guilty intelligently made in the light of the then applicable law does not become vulnerable because later judicial decisions indicate that the plea rested on a faulty premise”). Indeed, the courts of appeals have consistently held that a criminal defendant may knowingly and voluntarily waive his right to appeal his sentence before the sentence is imposed, even if subsequent changes in the law offer the defendant a new ground to challenge the validity of the sentence. See, e.g., United States v. Johnson, 67 F.3d 200, 202-203 (9th Cir. 1995); cf. Newton v. Rumery, 480 U.S. 386 (1987) (plaintiff may waive the right to bring a 42 U.S.C. 1983 action for unknown constitutional violations). Thus, the panel opinion in Garcia is not persuasive and should not be followed. This Court should instead align itself with the seven other courts of appeals to address the issue in holding that Section 2000d-7 put state agencies on notice that acceptance of federal financial assistance constituted a waiver of Eleventh Amendment immunity to Section 504 suits.

B. Congress Has Authority To Condition The Receipt Of Federal Financial Assistance On The State Waiving Its Eleventh Amendment Immunity

Defendant Mercer Vicinage contends (Supp. Br. 30 n.*) that Congress cannot abrogate under the Spending Clause. But Congress may condition its spending on a waiver of Eleventh Amendment immunity by the state agency that receives federal funds. Indeed, in Alden v. Maine, 527 U.S. 706, 755 (1999), the Court cited South Dakota v. Dole, 483 U.S. 203 (1987), a case involving Congress’s Spending Clause authority, when it noted that “the Federal Government [does not] lack the authority or means to seek the States’ voluntary consent to private suits.” Similarly, in College Savings Bank, the Court reaffirmed the holding of Petty v. Tennessee-Missouri Bridge Commission, 359 U.S. 275 (1959), where the Court held that Congress could condition the exercise of one of its Article I powers (there, the approval of interstate compacts) on the States’ agreement to waive their Eleventh Amendment immunity from suit. 527 U.S. at 686. At the same time, the Court suggested that Congress had the authority under the Spending Clause to condition the receipt of federal funds on the waiver of immunity. Ibid.; see also id. at 678-679 n.2. The Court explained that unlike Congress’s power under the Commerce Clause to regulate “otherwise lawful activity,” Congress’s power to authorize interstate compacts and spend money was the grant of a “gift” on which Congress could place conditions that a State was free to accept or reject. Id. at 687; cf. Delaware Dep’t of Health & Social Servs. v. Department of Educ., 772 F.2d 1123, 1138 (3d Cir. 1985) (State participation in Randolph-Sheppard Vending Stand Act constitutes a waiver of Eleventh Amendment immunity).

C. Section 504 Is A Valid Exercise Of The Spending Power

Although defendant Mercer Vicinage has filed two briefs on appeal challenging the constitutionality of the removal of Eleventh Amendment immunity for Section 504 claims, it has not argued that Section 504 itself is not valid Spending Clause legislation. It has thus forfeited the right to make the argument. Nonetheless, we briefly discuss the issue for the convenience of the Court.

The Supreme Court in Dole identified four limitations on Congress's Spending Power. First, the Spending Clause by its terms requires that Congress legislate in pursuit of "the general welfare." 483 U.S. at 207. Second, if Congress conditions the States' receipt of federal funds, it "must do so unambiguously * * *, enabling the States to exercise their choice knowingly, cognizant of the consequence of their participation." Ibid. (quoting Pennhurst State Sch. & Hosp. v. Halderman, 451 U.S. 1, 17 (1981)). Third, the Supreme Court's cases "have suggested (without significant elaboration) that conditions on federal grants might be illegitimate if they are unrelated 'to the federal interest in particular national projects or programs.'" Ibid. And fourth, the obligations imposed by Congress may not violate any independent constitutional provisions. Id. at 208. Section 504 meets all four of the Dole criteria. See Jim C. v. Arkansas Dep't of Educ., 235 F.3d 1079, 1080 (8th Cir. 2000) (en banc), cert. denied, 121 S. Ct. 2591 (2001).

1. First, the general welfare is served by prohibiting discrimination against persons with disabilities. See City of Cleburne v. Cleburne Living Ctr., 473 U.S. 432, 443-444 (1985) (discussing Section 504 with approval). Indeed, Dole noted that the judicial deference to Congress is so substantial that there is some question “whether ‘general welfare’ is a judicially enforceable restriction at all.” 483 U.S. at 207 n.2.

2. The language of Section 504 alone makes clear that the obligations it imposes are a condition on the receipt of federal financial assistance. Thus, the second Dole requirement is met. See School Bd. of Nassau County v. Arline, 480 U.S. 273, 286 n.15 (1987) (contrasting “the antidiscrimination mandate of § 504” with the statute in Pennhurst). Moreover, Department of Justice implementing regulations require that each application for financial assistance include an “assurance that the program will be conducted in compliance with the requirements of section 504 and this subpart.” 28 C.F.R. 42.504(a).

3. Section 504 meets the third Dole requirement as well. Section 504 furthers the federal interest in assuring that no federal funds are used to support, directly or indirectly, programs that discriminate or otherwise deny benefits and services on the basis of disability to qualified persons.

Section 504’s nondiscrimination requirement is patterned on Title VI and Title IX, which prohibit race and sex discrimination by “programs” that receive federal funds. See NCAA v. Smith, 525 U.S. 459, 466 n.3 (1999); Arline, 480 U.S. at 278 n.2. Both Title VI and Title IX have been upheld as valid Spending Clause legislation. In Lau v. Nichols, 414 U.S. 563 (1974), the Supreme Court held that Title VI, which the Court interpreted to prohibit a school district from ignoring the disparate impact its policies had on limited-English proficiency students, was a valid exercise of the Spending Power. “The Federal Government has power to fix the terms on which its money allotments to the States shall be disbursed.

Whatever may be the limits of that power, they have not been reached here.” Id. at 569 (citations omitted).<sup>35</sup> The Court made a similar holding in Grove City College v. Bell, 465 U.S. 555 (1984). In Grove City, the Court addressed whether Title IX, which prohibits education programs or activities receiving federal financial assistance from discriminating on the basis of sex, infringed on the college’s First Amendment rights. The Court rejected that claim, holding that “Congress is free to attach reasonable and unambiguous conditions to federal financial assistance that educational institutions are not obligated to accept.” Id. at 575.

These cases stand for the proposition that Congress has an interest in preventing the use of its funds to support, directly or indirectly, programs that discriminate or otherwise deny benefits and services to qualified persons because of race, gender, and disability. Thus, compliance with Section 504 is a valid condition on the receipt of all federal financial assistance.

---

<sup>35</sup> In Alexander v. Sandoval, 121 S. Ct. 1511, 1519 (2001), the Court noted that it has “rejected Lau’s interpretation of § 601 [of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. 2000d] as reaching beyond intentional discrimination.” The Court did not cast doubt on the Spending Clause holding in Lau.

Because this interest extends to all federal funds, Congress drafted Title VI, Title IX, and Section 504 to apply across-the-board to all federal financial assistance. The purposes articulated by Congress in enacting Title VI, purposes equally attributable to Title IX and Section 504, were to avoid the need to attach nondiscrimination provisions each time a federal assistance program was before Congress, and to avoid “piecemeal” application of the nondiscrimination requirement if Congress failed to place the provision in each grant statute. See 110 Cong. Rec. 6544 (1964) (Sen. Humphrey); id. at 7061-7062 (Sen. Pastore); id. at 2468 (Rep. Celler); id. at 2465 (Rep. Powell). Certainly, there is no distinction of constitutional magnitude between a nondiscrimination provision attached to each appropriation and a single provision applying to all federal spending.<sup>36</sup> Thus, a challenge to such a cross-cutting non-discrimination statute would fail.

4. Section 504 does not “induce the States to engage in activities that would themselves be unconstitutional.” Dole, 483 U.S. at 210. Neither providing meaningful access to people with disabilities nor waiving sovereign immunity violates anyone's constitutional rights. Defendant might have argued that operating a court is a "core state function" that precludes federal intrusion under principles of federalism. But the Court has held that "a perceived Tenth Amendment limitation on congressional regulation of state affairs did not concomitantly limit the range of conditions legitimately placed on federal grants." Ibid. This is because the federal government has not intruded into defendant's courts. The relevant state agency incurs these obligations only because it applies for and receives federal funds. "[T]he powers of the State are not invaded, since the statute imposes no obligation [to accept the funds] but simply extends an option which the State is free to accept or reject." Massachusetts v. Mellon, 262 U.S. 447, 480 (1923).

---

<sup>36</sup> For other Supreme Court cases upholding as valid exercises of the Spending Clause conditions not tied to particular spending programs, see Oklahoma v. United States Civil Serv. Comm’n, 330 U.S. 127 (1947) (upholding an across-the-board requirement in the Hatch Act that no state employee whose principal employment was in connection with any activity that was financed in whole or in part by the United States could take “any active part in political management”); Salinas v. United States, 522 U.S. 52, 60-61 (1997) (upholding federal bribery statute covering entities receiving more than $10,000 in federal funds).

5. In addition to the four established limits on the Spending Power, the Court has suggested that recipients may be able to raise a coercion argument.<sup>37</sup> As the Court pointed out in Dole, its "decisions have recognized that in some circumstances the financial inducement offered by Congress might be so coercive as to pass the point at which 'pressure turns into compulsion.'" 483 U.S. at 211 (quoting Steward Mach. Co. v. Davis, 301 U.S. 548, 590 (1937)). But the only <sup>37</sup> Although it is not clear how far the analogy between Spending Clause legislation and contracts extends, we believe that coercion, like duress, should be viewed as an affirmative defense that must be pressed and proved by the party attempting to void an otherwise valid "contract." See Mason v. United States, 84 U.S. 67, 74 (1872); Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(c). Thus, even more so than with the arguments discussed in the text, we believe defendant has forfeited any coercion argument by not raising it and thus this Court need not reach the issue.

---

case the Court cited was Steward Machine, a decision that expressed doubt about the viability of such a theory. 301 U.S. at 590 (finding no undue influence even “assum[ing] that such a concept can ever be applied with fitness to the relations between state and nation”). For every congressional spending statute “is in some measure a temptation.” Dole, 483 U.S. at 211. As the Court recognized, however, “to hold that motive or temptation is equivalent to coercion is to plunge the law in endless difficulties.” Ibid.<sup>38</sup>

Even accepting that “coercion” is an independent and justiciable concept, any argument that Section 504 is coercive would be inconsistent with Supreme Court decisions that demonstrate that States may be put to “difficult” or even “unrealistic” choices about whether to take federal benefits without the conditions becoming unconstitutionally “coercive.” See North Carolina ex rel. Morrow v. Califano, 445 F. Supp. 532, 535-536 (E.D.N.C. 1977) (three-judge court), aff’d <sup>38</sup> Other courts have recognized the inherent difficulties in determining whether a State has been “coerced” into accepting a funding condition. See Kansas v. United States, 214 F.3d 1196, 1202 (10th Cir.) (“the coercion theory is unclear, suspect, and has little precedent to support its application”), cert. denied, 531 U.S. 1035 (2000); California v. United States, 104 F.3d 1086, 1091-1092 (9th Cir.) (questioning whether there is “any viability” left in the coercion theory), cert. denied, 522 U.S. 806 (1997); Oklahoma v. Schweiker, 655 F.2d 401, 414 (D.C. Cir. 1981) (“The courts are not suited to evaluating whether the states are faced here with an offer they cannot refuse or merely a hard choice.”).

---

mem., 435 U.S. 962 (1978); FERC v. Mississippi, 456 U.S. 742, 766-767 (1982); Board of Education v. Mergens, 496 U.S. 226, 241 (1990); cf. Lawlor v. National Screen Serv. Corp., 211 F.2d 934, 937 (3d Cir. 1954) (“It is well settled that merely because one enters into an agreement which he would not enter if he did not need the money there is not such duress as will void the contract.”), rev’d on other grounds, 349 U.S. 322 (1955).

Because one of the critical purposes of the Eleventh Amendment is to protect the “financial integrity of the States,” Alden, 527 U.S. at 750, it is perfectly appropriate to permit each State to make its own cost-benefit analysis and determine whether it will, for any given state agency, accept the federal money with the condition that that agency can be sued in federal court for damages, or forgo the federal funds available to that agency. See New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 144, 168 (1992). But once defendant has accepted federal financial assistance, “[r]equiring States to honor the obligations voluntarily assumed as a condition of federal funding * * * simply does not intrude on their sovereignty.” Bell v. New Jersey, 461 U.S. 773, 790 (1983).

For all these reasons, compliance with Section 504 is a valid condition on the receipt of all federal financial assistance and thus Section 2000d-7 can be upheld under the Spending Clause.

CONCLUSION

The Eleventh Amendment was no bar to the district court's jurisdiction over this action.

Respectfully submitted,

RALPH F. BOYD, JR.
Assistant Attorney General

---

JESSICA DUNSAY SILVER
SETH M. GALANTER
Attorneys
Civil Rights Division
Department of Justice
P.O. Box 66078
Washington, D.C. 20035-6078
(202) 307-9994

STATEMENT OF RELATED CASES

The constitutionality of 42 U.S.C. 2000d-7 is also being challenged in Koslow v. Pennsylvania, No. 01-2782 (3d Cir.), and Lieberman v. Delaware, No. 01-3540.

CERTIFICATE OF COMPLIANCE

I hereby certify that the brief does not comply with the type-volume limitations set out in Fed. R. App. P. 32(a)(7)(B). The brief is proportionately spaced, has a typeface of 14 points, was prepared using WordPerfect 9.0, and contains 18,529 words. Concurrent with the brief's submission, the United States has filed a motion to accept the brief for filing that notes (in paragraph four) that the brief does not comply with Rule 32(a)(7)(B) and provides reasons why the brief should nevertheless be accepted.

---

SETH M. GALANTER
Attorney

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on November 2, 2001, two copies of the foregoing Brief for the United States as Intervenor were served by Federal Express, on each of the following persons:

Clara R. Smit
Suite 200
190 Highway 18 North
East Brunswick, NJ 08816

Mary C. Vargus
National Association of the Deaf Law Center
814 Thayer Avenue
Silver Spring, MD 20910

Andrew J. Schragger
Office of County Counsel County of Mercer
640 South Broad Street
McDade Administration Building
Trenton, NJ 08650

Douglass L. Derry
Office of Attorney General
of New Jersey
Department of Law & Public Safety
Richard J. Hughes Justice Complex
Trenton, NJ 08650

Diane M. Lamb
Office of Attorney General
of New Jersey
25 Market Street
Trenton, NJ 08625

---

SETH M. GALANTER
Attorney
Department of Justice
P.O. Box 66078
Washington, D.C. 20035-6078
(202) 307-9994